By ELLIS CUEVAS
A record number of votes are expected to be cast in Hancock County according to Jerry Heitzmann, chancery clerk.

Heitzmann said, "Some 200 persons have voted absentee, and this I am told is an increase over regular local and state elections."

Officials are concerned about the number of electors who will have district changes due to the recent redistricting.

Charles Gottschalk, Hancock County Election Commission secretary stated Saturday, "We suggest every voter to return to his prior voting precinct, if he is not sure where he votes. The precinct managers should be able to help direct them."

"As a matter of fact, every precinct will have a supply of 'Affidavit Ballot Envelopes' for persons whose name may not be on the registration book, but they are sure it should be. They will be able to cast their ballot and it will be sealed in the envelope. The election commissioners will check and see if the person was qualified to vote in the precinct, and if they were, the ballot will be counted," Gottschalk added.

Heitzmann commented, "We suggest any person not sure where they vote to call my office at 467-5265 on Monday if possible."

Gottschalk said the voting materials will be delivered on Monday for each precinct, with the polls open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Tuesday.

The counting of the votes for each precinct will be under the direction of the Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee at the courthouse after the polls close.

Last Monday a special meeting was held for all precinct workers on procedure and operation of the voting machines.

A second primary will be held on August 23 for the seats where a majority is not received by the top candidate.

Revenue sharing funds switched by supervisors

By JUNE M. HEYDT

At a second public hearing on revenue sharing conducted Friday morning, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors approved a proposed change of dropping four percent of the funds allocated to Law Enforcement and adding two percent each to Court Costs and Administration.

Court costs will now be six percent bringing the total figure to $30,492 and administration will be 16 percent the total figure being $81,311.

Walter Gex, board attorney, explained that this will not take any funding away from the Sheriff's department because the department is supposed to be funded out of general county funds. The proposal ensures that the revenue funds will be channeled where they belong, said Gex.

"Certain items that came out of sheriff department funding should have been coming from court costs, such as salaries for justice court judges, bailiffs, court room deputies, and the county defender," Gex said.

"Court room functions should be paid from those areas they truly work in," Gex added.

Another public hearing on revenue sharing is slated for Aug. 15.

Also on Aug. 15 the budget will be presented and a public hearing will be set before the budget is accepted.

James Pfeiffer, secretary of the board, said, "These figures are only anticipated estimates based on last year's figures."

Pfeiffer also noted that revenue sharing funds can only be used for funding where otherwise levied taxes would be used.

In other business, Louise Wilkinson, who described herself as a concerned citizen, asked the board members if they could consider using some of the revenue sharing funds for the construction of a museum.

Wilkinson said, "I am a teacher, and there are no places that we can take the children for educational purposes. I don't consider taking them to Buccaneer Park for an outing as educational."

She continued, "I'm not just talking for the county but for the whole area."

Gex said, "I don't believe that the county could fund something like that. Maybe if the three counties, Hancock, Hancock, and Stone would contribute a small part towards creating an entity it could be done."

"We need something for the county," Wilkinson continued.

Mary Caillier, of Clermont Harbor, another concerned citizen, said, "We should build a new courthouse and use the old one for a museum, and maybe some more county offices which are badly needed."

Also in other business, a letter was read from Congressman Trent Lott to James A. Head, executive director, Gulf Regional Planning Commission, acknowledging receipt of information concerning the problems with the term

Bridge repairs to bring Hancock highway closure

By EDGAR PEREZ

Hwy. 604, the north-south route which runs through the Pearlinton community between US-90 and Hwy. 607, will be closed to through traffic for about two weeks.

The southwest Hancock County artery which serves about 500 cars per day will close at 8 a.m. Wednesday for bridge repairs.

Richard E. Turner of Ocean Springs, State Highway Department Sixth District resident engineer, said a single-span, timber bridge about one mile south of Hwy. 607 will be replaced with a pre-cast concrete structure.

The bridge crosses a tributary creek of Bogue Homa off the East Pearl River.

"We expect to need 10 working days to complete the job, so, weather permitting, the highway should be reopened by Aug. 17," Turner said.

Signs notifying motorists the road is closed to through traffic will be posted at the intersections of Hwy. 604 with Hwy. 607 and US-90.

"In addition, we will have concrete barriers on either side of the construction site," the engineer explained.

Turner noted some $20,000 in materials have been ordered for the project which will be undertaken with Highway Department personnel and equipment.

TALKING BUSINESS—Hancock County Port and Harbor Authority Commission members from left, Mrs. Paulette Fernandez, secretary; Harry Baxter, Perry Gibson, James DeBlanc, director; Robert Genin, commission attorney; Dave McDonald, treasurer; Herbert Zengarling, and Vic Frankiewicz, discuss plans to place a tariff on the channels and waterways at Port Bienville. ## Port and Harbor seeking ways to tax waterway

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Issuance of a license to a terminal operator at Port Bienville to collect channel and waterway tariffs was discussed at a recessed meeting of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Thursday evening.

The proposed license would be purchased from the commission for $500, and would authorize the purchaser, as a terminal operator, to collect wharfage and barge fees.

James DeBlanc, Port and Harbor Commission director, said, "We are going to need these fees to repair the roads that overloaded trucks are damaging."

"We are going to need fees for the dredging of the channels."

"When all the property at the park is sold out, we're going to need these fees to maintain it," said DeBlanc.

Robert Genin, commission attorney, said he would write to the attorney general's office, and find out the legalities of imposing these taxes.

Genin also said he will check into assessment of tariffs strictly for use of the waterways.

Genin promised the commission he would have a full report by the next meeting on Aug. 11.

In other business, DeBlanc praised the fast work of Gulf Regional Planning Commission (GRPC) concerning a project on the taxiway extension at Stennis Airport.

DeBlanc said, "I called Jim Head last Friday and requested an updated report on the taxiway to be presented for federal funding by Aug. 1."

The last report done was March 21, 1978.

"Monday morning Bill Stebbins, of GRPC came to the office, we discussed the situation, and then went to the site," said DeBlanc.

"Tuesday morning, Stebbins was back in the office with the figures all ready to send."

In 1978 the proposed figure was $200,000 for the extension of the taxiway. GRPC's is $328,000 based on an extension of 1,750 feet.

DeBlanc said, "The application for the funding was mailed off Tuesday to

Shuttle to carry tank into orbit

By EDGAR PEREZ

Martin Marietta has been awarded a $444,000 study contract to update and further define the design of a cargo carrier to fit on the aft end of the Space Shuttle external tank.

The eight-month contract was awarded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

The 21-foot wide, 28-foot long aft cargo carrier, which fits over the bottom of the external tank, doubles the Space Shuttle's payload volume and allows greater flexibility in payload size and design.

The carrier enables the Shuttle to take full advantage of its boosting power, improves efficiency and reduces charges to Shuttle users.

The Martin Marietta proposal, a joint development of advanced programs, engineering and production operations departments, aims at eventual production of the aft cargo carrier by the company's Michoud Division in New Orleans, where Martin Marietta manufactures the Space Shuttle external tank at NASA's Michoud Assembly Facility.

The cargo carrier would be added to an external tank which would be carried into orbit by the Shuttle.

"The Shuttle is already carrying its external tank about 98 percent of the way into orbit before ejection," said Martin's Evan McCollum, adding, "it will just be a matter of holding the tank for two percent more of the way."

The Martin Michoud official noted the orbiting tanks may be utilized as space experiment platforms or elements of more elaborate space stations.

Another option under study is to dispose of the tank in a re-entry burnup after it is no longer useful in orbit, the Martin executive explained.

Youth program forced to end early this year

The Summer Youth Employment Program that was scheduled to end at 5 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 10, will have to be cut short by five days, according to Sam Perniciaro, District Four supervisor.

Due to inadequate funding, it became necessary to end the program at 5 p.m.,

Friday, Aug. 5, added Perniciaro.

The Gulf Coast Employment and Training administration stated in a memorandum to all summer youth employment workers, "No one will be compensated beyond Aug. 5, by this office."

The memo also asked that time sheets be forwarded to their offices in order to ensure receipt by Aug. 10.

The address of the office is, Gulf Coast Employment and Training Administration, P.O. Box 4233, Harrison County Courthouse, Gulfport, Ms. 39501.

Perniciaro said he thought it was a shame the program had to be cut short but, also added that he thinks the program has been of benefit to the youth of our community.

You want to get what licensed??

By JUNE M. HEYDT

A license for what?? That was the reaction Tom Young, employee relations supervisor from Dupont, received when he tried to get a license for the 'Silver Bullet.'

The silver bullet is a barbecue pit that members of the Delisle Employees Recreation Association from Dupont voluntarily made after hours at the plant.

The bullet is made from a piece of 36-inch pipe and is 20-feet long. Young and several others felt that the pit would probably have to be licensed to transport it to Buccaneer Park on Saturday for the association's first annual picnic.

"When we first went to the Harrison County Courthouse all we got was chuckles when we told them we wanted a license for our barbecue pit. After we described it and told them how big it was they agreed we might need a license," said Young.

One woman at the courthouse told Young to call the bullet a farm trailer. Another woman said, "No let's call it what it is, 'a barbecue pit,' that will really drive them nuts up in Jackson."

They got their license and on Saturday morning the silver bullet was ready for action.

Greg Cuevas, a Dupont employee said, "You should have seen the looks we got when we were pulling it down this morning."

Cuevas added about the bullet, "It's street legal, guaranteed not to rip, run, snort, or eat your panty hose." The bullet will be kept at the plant for picnics in the future.

Young said they picked Buccaneer Park for their picnic because it was handy, a nice area, has the facilities, and the price, $25, was right.

The association purchased the food for the picnic at a Waveland grocery store.

The association also donated a dozen 55-gallon trash cans to the park.

A special attraction at the picnic was 'Jingles the Clown,' who is also employed at Dupont as a production supervisor. Jingles real name is Woody Woodward and he has done many shows around the coast, said Young.

Jingles brought two assistants with him to the picnic, they are his grandchildren, Michael and Lisa Pearson. "They came all the way from South Carolina for the picnic," said Jingles.

Early arrivals at the picnic were served barbecued sausage and biscuits, later in the afternoon rib eye steaks were served.

"This is our first really big picnic and we're going all out," said Young.

"We hope to make it an annual event," he added.

J. H. "Buster" STRAHAN FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE District 106

"Buster Strahan fights for the rights of the people."

"Although this is my first involvement in any kind of politics, I have long been active in community and civic affairs in my area. I helped organize the Mississippi Landowners Association, the Pearl River County Development Association, and the various volunteer fire departments in our county."

"I have served as volunteer Civil Defense Director and served as a member of the Pearl River County Advisory Committee of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center. To know what a person will be interested in during the future, you must know what his past interests were."

"If elected, I will continue to be interested in economic development, agricultural needs, mental health, education and other areas of vital concern to our people."

"Currently, I am very interested in the return of mineral rights to the taxpaying landowners, which is why I am now a candidate for representative. This is your fight as well as mine, so people, get involved!"

"This race could be the beginning of a political time bomb in Mississippi. A landslide victory by me in the first primary would send a strong message to every state politician, since every candidate in the state would gladly climb on this bandwagon if he or she saw this was a sure way to get elected. This movement is people helping people and this is what we need right now."

"Let's all rally to the cause and get out and vote. Thank you, and may God bless each and every one!"

ETV Brief

CONCERTO NO. 5

Concert pianist Andre Watts performs with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra in a special program for public television to be telecast at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 10, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

"Andre Watts in Concert with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra" features a performance of Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 5 in E Flat Major" ("Emperor") and also Zoltan Kodaly's "Dances of Galanta."

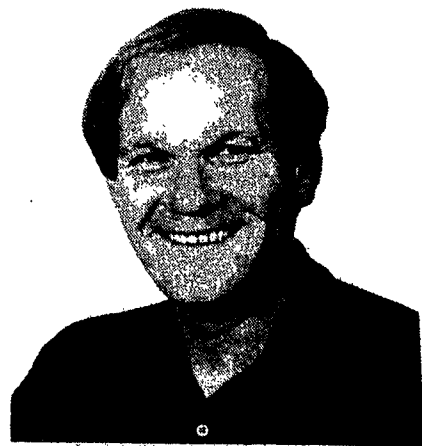

At the age of four, child prodigy Andre Watts chose a miniature violin to play but within a span of two years made clear his preference for the piano. His dedication and commitment to the piano were shared with the world ten years later when Leonard Bernstein introduced him as the soloist for a New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert and, three weeks later, presented him to regular subscribers as a last-minute substitute for the ailing Glenn Gould.

The enthusiastic ovation at both appearances, resounded over wire services around the world, and the then-16-year-old Andre Watts burst into international fame. Today his concert schedule of 150 performances a year is booked three years in advance.

TAKE STOCK IN MISSISSIPPI

It's time for the voters of Mississippi to look at their state and ask themselves three questions. Where have we been? Where are we now? And where are we headed?

The answer to the first two questions are the same. We have been and still are at the bottom of every major category which compares the 50 states to each other except one. This one category is taxation. You as Mississippi taxpayers have the honor of being one of the highest taxed states in the union. The biggest source of income in the state of Mississippi is welfare. Mississippi is number fifty in per-capita income, which simply means that if you have a job in this state you are likely to be one of the lowest paid people in the 50 states.

The answer to the third question is the most important for it is yet to be decided. The answer is in the hands of you, the voters. Will we try to increase the 16 years of seniority which we have in District 106? The same seniority which has set this state's declining course and deprived our people of their God-given rights to industry, education, and lower taxes, or will we go with a man who will knock down the doors which have suppressed our state's growth and our people's right to a better way of life. A man who will promote industry, better education and lower taxes. A man who believes in returning to the people what they have already paid for in the form of their mineral rights. A man who believes in keeping the woods open for hunting and fishing. A man who believes the people should be the government and be, when elected, just the voice of the people. A man who wants all Mississippians to be able to stand tall in any state of the union, in any group of people and proudly say, "Yes, I'm from Mississippi."

On August 2, after you have asked yourself these questions, don't vote for a change but vote for a chance, a chance to improve Mississippi, the state, and a chance for the people of Mississippi to have a better and fair way of life.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Your Secretary of State exercises administrative powers that daily affect business, both public and private. He is the official record keeper, administers several acts affecting Trade and Commerce (issues Corporate Charters, exercises control over sale of Securities and business takeovers, all to prevent frauds, and many other duties that daily affect business). He is land Commissioner, Member of and Chief Officer of the State Election Commission and numerous other State Boards.

The duties of this office require a competent proven administrator. The duties are executive, not legislative. Among the Candidates only Pat Griffin has eleven years experience in the executive branch.

A State Law supported by Legislators who now seek this office requires that the assistant Secretaries of State be competent attorneys. The boss should be at least as well qualified as his help.

Pat's pledge to the people of Hancock County is that he will not use this office as a political stepping stone, but will conduct the affairs of the office in a manner that will reflect credit on the home County of his Family.

PLEASE SUPPORT EFFECTIVE GOVERNMENT VOTE PAT GRIFFIN SECRETARY OF STATE

Paid for by Hancock County friends of Pat Griffin, submitted to and approved by Pat Griffin.

Every vote will count in Tuesday's election

Democratic Primary Elections will be held Tuesday throughout the state as well as Republican Primaries in several counties.

In Hancock County there will only be a Democratic Primary election, as there are no offices contested by Republicans.

The winners in Tuesday's election—some may have run-offs—are for a spot on the ballot in the November General Election.

In all probability the majority of the candidates elected on Tuesday will be the leaders of Hancock County for the next four years.

It is very important for everyone to cast a ballot for the candidates whom they think will do the best job.

There have been several changes in the voting locations and districts for a portion of the residents of the county.

Many hours have been spent by the election commissioners trying to assure the vote will go as smooth as possible under the circumstances of the redistricting.

We would like to suggest to those not quite sure as to where they will be voting, to try and secure the information before election day.

All votes are important and do count, but they can only count if they are cast.

The new signal lights at the intersection of US-90 and Main Street, Bay St. Louis are a big improvement. The signals are larger and seem to be better placed than the ones they have replaced.

A couple of months ago Robert Moseley, assistant traffic control and safety engineer for the State Highway Department met with Douglas Williams, Bay St. Louis chief of police and told him the intersection was scheduled to have new signals.

Studies have also been conducted at other Bay intersections which are of concern to Chief Williams.

It is good to know the State Highway Department is working with local officials in keeping signals updated as habits of travel change.

Congratulations are in order for Bay-Waveland Yacht Club's Bobby Eagan and his brother Marc for their sailing ability, as they captured the prestigious 1983 Flying Scot North American Championship.

It is amazing how many sailing titles over the years have been captured by sailors from the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

As a matter of fact, Bay-Waveland sailors captured five of the top ten spots in the week long competition.

It was a beautiful sight this week with all of the sail boats in the Bay of St. Louis.

ARMS CONTROL AND THE MX MISSILE

The U. S. House of Representatives has just completed one of the most historic weeks in memory, censuring two members for improper conduct and meeting in secret session for only the third time ever.

In my opinion, though, one of the most important actions taken by the House involved another subject, control of nuclear arms, and its relationship to continued development of the MX missile.

The MX, nicknamed "Peacekeeper" by President Reagan, has been subjected to more scrutiny than any weapons system ever developed and, over the months and years, considerable controversy has surrounded it.

There has been debate over the missile's basing mode, whether development should be limited to research, engineering and the like, and on whether funds should be approved for actual procurement so that the missile could be made part of the American deterrent.

By a margin of 13 votes, the House decided to proceed with actual procurement, giving pro-MX forces a victory for a number of reasons.

The most important reason involved arms control negotiations now going on between the U.S. and USSR in Switzerland. These Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START) represent the only opportunity currently at hand to reduce nuclear tensions between the world's two superpowers.

As President Reagan said, it is important that the U.S. speak with one bipartisan voice in standing up for our interests. He called the MX missile a "Lever that is working to keep the Soviets moving at the negotiation tables."

The delicate talks can be tilted by the slightest sign of a country's future intentions. To have ended the MX program would have sent a negative signal to the Russians.

The Russians do not negotiate from a position of weakness and have no respect for another country which does. The fact of life is that our START team must be able to deal with the Russians from a position of strength before the other side will begin to negotiate in earnest.

Clearly, the U.S. is committed to arms control and to a reduction in the numbers and firepower of nuclear weapons. There are signs that progress is being made in the current talks and, with the House MX vote, I hope it will continue.

Small-business Angle

by Wilson S. Johnson

In matters of tax reform, the Congress too often has a habit of giving and then taking away. So it is with some lawmakers who are scheming to take away some of the gains made in the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 (ERTA).

One provision of that law which has helped small-business owners immensely is the change in the estate or "death tax" provisions of ERTA. The new law greatly reduced the financial burden of passing a small business or family farm on to survivors—keeping it in the family.

A curse of many small-business owners is the constant need to reinvest taxed business earnings in their business. Often, when the owner dies, beneficiaries cannot raise necessary cash to pay the estate taxes, and must liquidate the family business.

This is a tragedy, because in many cases the family has been a major factor in the success of the small business, even though the surviving family members may not be legal owners. The estate tax laws have denied many independent business people the opportunity to pass on to wives, sons and daughters a part of themselves.

The impact of inflation on the value of farm land and small businesses has further compounded the problem. Prior to passage of ERTA, federal death tax liabilities were increasing dramatically, causing worry among small-business owners that their life's work could not continue. Wealthy owners of large businesses do not have these problems because they can transfer wealth between generations by sophisticated tax planning, minimizing or eliminating federal estate taxes.

Senate Resolution 126, expresses the sense of the U.S. Senate that reduction in federal estate and gift taxes scheduled to occur in 1986 should remain in place. It is fully supported by the nation's largest small-business organization, the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB).

Any freeze or reduction in scheduled estate tax decreases will be unfavorable to small-business owners. The estate tax is both a confiscatory tax which reduces the productivity of small business, and a tax which strikes at the heart of small business by jeopardizing the continuance of family-owned businesses.

Figures show the positive results of ERTA changes. In 1981, before ERTA was law, the maximum amount of exemption from federal tax was $170,000. This year the amount rises to $275,000. By 1987, the amount of the exemption will rise to $600,000.

NFIB also supports S. 1250, the U.S. Senate measure which has as its goal the full repeal of "death" taxes. That measure is a long-range goal. For the short range, NFIB supports U.S. Senate bill S. 1251 which would ease qualifications for electing installment payment of estate taxes for closely-held businesses and subsequently help reduce the liquidity problem of small-business heirs who become subject to the federal estate tax.

(Wilson S. Johnson is president of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing more than half a million small-business men and women).

Blacks impatient with supervisor delay in appointing hospital director

To the Editor

Dear Sir:

Subject: An open letter to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors

We, some of the Black community of Hancock County, feel that we are getting the run-around concerning the naming of a qualified Black citizen to the Board of Directors of Hancock County General Hospital.

Members of our group have written to the board of supervisors; we have appeared before the board; we have approached the supervisors individually.

Each time we have been assured that they have no objection to placing a Black citizen on the Board of Directors of the Hancock County General Hospital, but "we do not wish to change anyone who is doing a good job."

In regards to this answer, one of us has been asked by a supervisor whether we object to this position. We do strongly object to this position.

We are aware of the fact that due to a staggered appointment system vacancies have occurred regularly.

However, these vacancies have regularly been filled by a reappointment of these same persons whose expired terms caused the vacancies on the board.

We do not hereby object to keeping good citizens on the board. However, we do object vehemently when this procedure serves to neglect a vital segment of the community.

This procedure has now been followed for the past 20 years.

We believe that at this time the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County should finally arrive at that "postponed time" when a Black will become a member of the governing board of directors for our county hospital.

Black citizens over the years have patronized this hospital.

There is not valid reason why they cannot have representation on the board directing the operation of this hospital.

Can registered voters readily accept this reasoning which forestalls their having a voice in directing their own destiny? Soooo, why not now? Or when, please tell? Another 20 years?

For the first time since he has been office, I agree with Larry Bennett, re the proposed hospital.

If Hancock County wants to build a

It will service the growing population of that area and the Ammo plant, Dupont and NSTL.

Rainstorms reveal undeveloped area was 'a lake in disguise.'

July 25, 1983

Letter to the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

Over two and one-half years ago, my family purchased a small house in Waveland at the end of a dead-end street in order to get away from the hustle and bustle, traffic and everyday hectic city life.

The house needed extensive repairs and, over a period of time, we have renovated it and made it quite comfortable.

We have grown to enjoy our leisure time spent in Waveland and consequently, spend a large sum on groceries, clothing, eating out, etc., not to mention the cost of taxes, gas, electricity, flood and hazard insurances.

When we purchased the property, there evidently had been a dry spell and the undeveloped area directly next to us (at the dead end), was completely dry.

Two months later and after several rainstorms, we discovered that the undeveloped area was a "lake in disguise."

Ever since then, we have had to contend not only with the ever-standing, stagnated water, but the children and grandchildren are constantly exposed to the mosquitoes and insects that breed in this contamination.

There is absolutely no drainage for this area and very little for the entire street!

We have requested, on several occasions by phone, that the grass along the street be cut so that we can at least drive our car to the house. This street has seen a grass cutting crew on possibly one or two occasions, at the most!

We have also made requests to have the potholes in the street filled so that our car does not need major repairs as a result of these holes—we have had no response!

I would like to know if there is a procedure that must be followed in order to obtain some of the services that we, as taxpayers, law abiding, money spending property owners are entitled to, and, at this point in time feel are, urgently needed!

Sincerely,
George and Jackie Lewis
Waveland

American politics, economics revolve around survival of the New Deal

(The following article is the result of a project funded by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions are those of the author and not those of either organization.)

The New Deal After 50 Years
By ROBERT S. MCELVAINE
History Department
Mississippi College

"But we must give as well," claimed newly elected Franklin D. Roosevelt in his inaugural address 50 years ago. He had observed that "We cannot merely take," but must unselfishly respond with our gifts.

America's president with the longest tenure in history called for "values more noble than mere monetary profit" as he launched his all-encompassing New Deal.

In the half century since March 4, 1933, the New Deal has been the focal point of American politics debate. As the nation suffers through its worst economic crisis since the 1930s, it seems fitting to look at what the New Deal has meant to this nation.

The New Deal represented the acceptance by the federal government of societal responsibility to aid those who were unable to provide for themselves either because of personal incapacity or the failure of the economy to produce enough jobs. It meant that the nation no longer would place the full stigma of poverty and unemployment on the individual victim.

The New Deal also committed the government to intervene in the economy in an effort to make up for the inadequacies of the market place and protect the innocent from the mistakes of the economy. To carry this program out, it became acceptable to incur budget deficits.

In short, the New Deal indicated that the American people had finally decided that morality should have a place in the economy, and that Americans need not simply accept whatever happened as if it were dictated by the gods.

The New Deal never solved the Depression—World War II did that—but it did place the government behind a humane, compassionate approach to social and economic problems, ease self-blame, and provide programs that would cushion future economic shocks.

Franklin Roosevelt became the most popular president of this century. Millions of down-and-out Americans wrote letters expressing their love. "All the working men are for you," wrote a Tennesseean in 1936, "for you sure have been good to the Poor and help us out."

The affection for Roosevelt has not died. At the height of the putative Reagan reaction in early 1982, an NBC-Associated Press survey found that 63 percent of the American people held a favorable opinion of FDR, while only 11 percent had an unfavorable opinion. Such a margin of approval is the envy of any recent chief executive.

In the period between the 1960s and early 1980s, discontent with the No-Longer-New Deal increased. The values of the Depression era declined and acquisitive individualism took precedence. People became "careless" in the sense that F. Scott Fitzgerald had used the word in the 1920s. This change in the national mood made possible the election of Ronald Reagan and encouraged him to try to reverse the New Deal. His removal of some of the cushions past administrations had provided has made the current economic fall much harder than it otherwise would have been.

Mr. Reagan's election was seen by many as the deathknell of the New Deal. It is now becoming clear that it was not. Members of the administration have taken glee in lashing liberals for being "out of step with the times" and practicing "antique politics from a bygone era." But if the policies of Franklin Roosevelt are antique, how are we to label those of Calvin Coolidge, William McKinley, and Alexander Hamilton?

In accepting the 1936 Democratic nomination, Franklin Roosevelt beautifully summarized his approach: "Governments can err; presidents do make mistakes. But better the occasional faults of a government that lives in a spirit of charity than the consistent omissions of a government frozen in the ice of its own indifference."

As the unemployment rate has passed the 10 percent barrier in recent months, the ice of indifference may have begun to thaw. President Reagan himself has been obliged to endorse a jobs bill. His aides seek continually, albeit unsuccessfully, to find ways to identify the President with a more caring attitude.

A half century after it began, the New Deal not only survives, it is the axis around which our political and economic lives revolve.

CANCER Answerline

A regular feature prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

QUESTION: Are there any identifiable patterns to look for in the development of breast cancer?

ANSWERline: The American Cancer Society points out that under 35, the risk of breast cancer is minimal; every woman over 35 is normally at high risk. Risk increases with age; about 75 percent of breast cancer occurs after age 50. All women are at higher risk if they have a personal history of breast cancer in the immediate family—mothers or sisters. Women with breast lumps or thickenings, nipple discharge or other abnormalities are also at higher risk.

However, a recent six year study by the American Cancer Society showed that fairly definite patterns were found in only small proportions of women.

The ACS report in Ca - A Cancer Journal for Clinicians was based on data collected during the first six years of the Society's large prospective study begun in 1959 to study the relationship of people's living habits to cancer. Among 365,812 women they identified 3,130 in whom breast cancer developed during 1959-65. Only 21 percent of the breast cancers in women aged 30 to 54, and 29 percent of those aged 55 to 84 were "attributable to accepted risk factors either singly or in combination. . . . The fact that three-quarters of all breast cancer cannot be attributed to any known specific cause is reason to increase our efforts to identify and quantify risk factors, and to seek effective means of intervention and control," the study declared.

Help Your Heart

Kicking the Salt Habit

Most people in the United States consume more salt than they need for good health, and their intake can be safely reduced, says the American Heart Association. Too much salt in the diet may lead to high blood pressure in some people. High blood pressure increases the risk of stroke, heart attack and kidney failure.

What is sodium?

Sodium is a mineral found in nature and in almost all the food we eat. Salt is the common name for sodium chloride, which is about half sodium. You need sodium to live. But you get enough in fresh foods. There's no need to add more. Learn to use pepper and other spices and herbs in place of salt, and to enjoy the natural flavor of food.

Most foods in their natural state contain only a small amount of sodium. On the other hand, food that has been processed is usually high in sodium. More than half of the sodium in the average diet comes from the salt and other sodium compounds that are added to food at home or by the food manufacturer. Table salt is the biggest source.

High-sodium foods

Canned soups, canned vegetables, many baked goods and convenience main dishes are usually high in sodium. However, an increasing number of manufacturers have developed low-sodium and no-sodium-added products. Buy them. Flavor enhancers, preservatives, baking powder, baking soda and monosodium glutamate also contain sodium. A surprising amount of sodium is processed into condiments such as catsup, relishes, pickles, mustard, horseradish, soy sauce, and flavored salts like garlic and onion salts. Avoid salted or smoked varieties of meat such as bacon, ham, sausages, luncheon meats, salt pork, corned beef and canned fish.

Low-sodium foods

Instead of pickles and catsup, try using lettuce, tomato and a slice of onion on sandwiches. Raw fruits and vegetables, unsalted nuts and popcorn, and unsalted crackers are great low-sodium snack foods. Choose low-sodium meats such as beef, chicken and fish and use less salt in cooking them.

Some labels on food containers state the amount of sodium in a serving. It's important to read labels carefully if you are on a low-sodium diet prescribed by a doctor. If you have high blood pressure, follow your doctor's advice about diet, weight control and medication. If you're taking pills to keep your blood pressure down, keep taking them. Cutting down on sodium or losing weight may help, but let your doctor help you decide what's best for you.

Mississippi farmers losing 11 tons of soil per acre

By Jimmy Bonner
Extension Service

If every farmer in the state farmed like Julius Holley of Prentiss County, we wouldn't have the reputation of having one of the nation's worst erosion problems.

Prentiss County also wouldn't be losing soil at the rate of 17 tons per acre. This is among the highest levels in the state and in an area where erosion losses are considerably higher than the state average.

Statewide, farmers are losing soil at the rate of almost 11 tons per acre. Mississippi trails only Tennessee and Missouri nationally in soil erosion.

Holley, who farms wheat, soybeans and grain sorghum with son J. C. Holley Jr., uses erosion control practices that are reducing soil losses to a fraction of the Prentiss County average.

His practices include the use of no-till planting involving a special no-till planter made available at low cost through the cooperation of agricultural agencies.

By using no-till and other practices, Holley is reducing erosion to about three tons per acre, the tolerance level set by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

The no-till planter is available through a special arrangement among the SCS, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

All have a hand in seeing that Holley and other farmers who use the planter have all the tools they need in no-till farming. SCS provides the technical help, the Extension

Farmers are charged only a maintenance fee of $2 per acre to use the planter, which is administered locally by the Prentiss County Soil and Water Conservation District. About 500 acres were seeded with the planter this summer.

The idea in providing the planter is to allow local farmers, who can't afford the equipment, to use it at the low cost and then decide for themselves the merits of no-till farming.

"A lot of farmers are aware of the need for no-till planting, but can't justify the equipment cost," said Dalton Garner, another Prentiss County farmer who has used the planter. "By having the equipment, a farmer can see for himself how no-till works."

Tony Thompson, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, said farmers who go to no-till farming can cut their erosion losses in half.

"Even with using terraces, Mr. Holley lost an average of six tons of soil per acre using the best cropping systems," Thompson said. "By going one step further and using no-till, he reduced that to about three tons."

Local officials had recognized the need to provide a no-till planter, but lacked funds. That problem was solved when Dr. Bob Gibson, TVA field representative for Mississippi, and Dr. Joe Schmidt, Extension coordinator for TVA agricultural development programs, made arrangements for TVA to buy the planter.

The heavy-duty planter is ideal for doublecropping because it allows farmers to plant soybeans directly through the harvest wheat stubble without disking or Service the educational information, ASCS the cost-share help and TVA the financial help.

Much of the land on Holley's farm and farmland throughout Prentiss County is sloping cropland which is protected to keep the land productive.

Holley's efforts in fighting erosion is well-received by the agencies and by agricultural officials across the state. Officials are promoting reduced erosion in the state through a Hold Our Topsoil (HOT) program.

In addition to no-till planting, Holley's other weapon against erosion is a series of well-placed earth terraces on his farmland. The built up mounds of earth run the length of his fields and slow the flow of water, which reduces erosion.

"Any farmer who is working hilly ground has got to have terraces to protect his soil," Holley said. "If I didn't have terraces, I wouldn't be farming."

Using the no-till planter allows Holley to plant two crops on the same land each year. The doublecropping system leaves a protective crop residue which keeps hilly soils from washing in heavy rains.

In his first year to use no-till, Holley is doublecropping about 100 acres of soybeans planted no-till after wheat harvest. He also grows 100 acres of grain sorghum.

Holley is able to afford no-till planting—something researchers have advocated to reduce erosion, primarily because the no-till equipment is available at low-costs. Normal costs of such equipment are beyond the reach of many farmers.

disturbing the soil, which would add to erosion problems.

By using the planter to seed soybeans in narrow rows, Holley gets an early jump on weed problems since the narrow rows provide quick shade and suppress weed competition.

Farmers such as those in north Mississippi and other areas who have severe erosion problems are losing in several ways, according to Cliff Bice, TVA area director in Jackson, Tenn.

"Not only do farmers lose their soil, but they also lose yields and fertility levels which makes farming more expensive," Bice said.

Holley is a believer in no-till planting because it saves not only his soils, but also has other advantages. It saves labor and time by reducing the number of trips over a field required to produce a crop. He figures no-till saves him three trips over the field and translates to savings of $3 to $5 per acre. He also is a strong believer in wheat as a soil-saver.

"This is the first year we've had wheat and it's the best soil-holder I've ever seen," he said. "It's worth growing even if you don't get anything else out of the crop."

Holley does get something out of his wheat crop, however. This year he averaged about 40 bushels per acre, considerably above the county average. He expects some drop from last year's 30 bushels per acre on soybeans, but remains convinced that doublecropping pays.

"If no-till works as well as I believe it can, it can be one of the best things to happen to farmers around here in a long time," Holley said.

ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS!

JIMMY TRAVIRCA'S ACTIONS SPEAK LOUD AND CLEAR!

★ JOBS

Over 200 people are now employed at the Port & Harbor. New businesses and developments are providing hundreds of other chances for employment for our people.

★ ROADS

When I took office there was a lot to do and very little money with which to do it. With sound planning and good management over 50 miles of Beat Five roads have been paved. Seven more miles are now under construction.

★ BRIDGES

Four very dangerous bridges in Beat Five have been replaced with modern, safe concrete spans. This is an accomplishment that will last a lifetime.

★ DRAINAGE

A serious drainage problem in the Shoreline Park area that has persisted for years has been relieved with the installation of a 20-foot culvert and other road and ditch improvements. Another example of planning and action.

★ PROGRESS

Our citizens now use modern electronic voting machines. The Courthouse renovation has been completed. A Countywide communications system has been established. All this, and much more, has been accomplished within a well-managed, carefully controlled budget.

JIMMY TRAVIRCA - WORKING FOR YOU

In the city. In the country. In the Courthouse. Serving full-time for the people of Beat Five. Looking after their interests, and the interests of the county. No pie-in-the-sky promises. No far out schemes. Just sound judgement and dedication. Good management and efficiency. On Tuesday, cast your vote for proven leadership. Vote for James N. (Jimmy) Travirca, Supervisor Beat Five. MAKE NO MISTAKE—VOTE TRAVIRCA.

Over 50 miles of paved roads in Beat Five. Seven more miles now under construction. A record to be proud of.

Four new concrete bridges replaced dangerous, dilapidated structures. Another example of planning and management of tax dollars.

The movement of surface water has always been a problem in the past. The installation of culverts, ditch clearing and road improvements have greatly improved the problem.

Emotions Anonymous chapter formed in Hancock County

By JUNE M. HEYDT

A new self-help organization is being formed in the Bay-Waveland area.

The program is based on people sharing with each other. "Sometimes if a person knows someone else is going through the same problems they are, the problems are easier to handle," said a spokesman for the group.

The group is called Emotions Anonymous and will meet every Friday night at First Assembly of God Church, 1912 Arnold Street, Waveland, at 7:30 p.m.

Emotions Anonymous (EA) is a self-help group that does for the person seeking improved emotional health what Alcoholics Anonymous does for the alcoholic.

EA follows the Twelve-Step program of AA as adapted for persons with emotional or living problems.

EA has been in existence since 1971. First-name only anonymity is part of the program.

There are no dues or fees for membership. It is a non-profit fellowship supported entirely by the voluntary contributions of its members.

EA is a spiritual program, not a religious program and is helpful to people of all faiths or of no recognized faith.

A spokesman for the program said, "If you are not as happy as you would like to be, or if you have gone the whole route of other methods of treatment and still have not found inner peace and serenity, you are invited to discover the warm and friendly meetings and the Twelve-Step Program which has been so successful in achieving and maintaining emotional health for so many people."

"Magic of Animal Painting" is a series focusing on a lighthearted, whimsical style of painting animals. Artist-host for the series Sue Scheewe has enjoyed successful careers as both a professional artist and teacher. "I just want my TV viewers to have fun," she says. "They won't become instant Rembrandts, but they will get better with practice and have more and more fun with painting in the process."

TO ALL CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY

Government is big business, and as we draw close to this election it is time for each of you to determine the man best qualified to manage that business.

I feel that with my education background, my many years of successful business experience, and my military and business leadership, I am by far the most qualified man to be your Supervisor in District Two.

My primary goal for Hancock County is to work closely with all members of the Board of Supervisors in order to improve industrial development in our county, thus reducing our staggering unemployment.

In District Two my primary goal is to increase the quality of our road and drainage systems by increasing the amount of maintenance on them. Furthermore, I would employ full-time grass maintenance personnel during the summer months.

I will develop and maintain recreational facilities in each of our communities so that our children can safely occupy some of their idle time.

I have tried to visit with each of you during this campaign and personally answer your questions and ask for your vote and support. If I missed any of you, please consider this my personal request for your vote and support. And I strongly urge each of you to exercise your voice in government by voting August 2, 1983.

Golden Eagle reputation to be eyed in TV specials

How will the loss of All-American Reggie Collier affect Southern Mississippi's Golden Eagles in 1983 and will the Eagles' Nasty Bunch defense live up to its reputation?

These are just a few of the subjects that will be examined when the third annual Eagle Fever Special is aired on five television stations in that state in August.

The 30-minute pre-season look at USM's football program is hosted by John Cox and includes a review of the 1982 season, interviews with head coach Jim Carmody, offensive coordinator Keith Daniels and defensive coordinator Thomas Coleman.

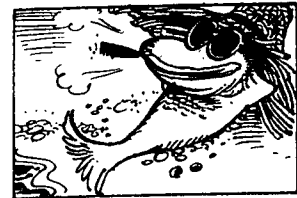

The program also features a segment with several key players talking about the upcoming season.

VOTERS OF BEAT TWO!

THE ISSUES ARE SIMPLE! WHO CAN SERVE YOU BETTER!

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR EXPERIENCE!

✓ DOLPH KELLAR HAS REPRESENTED HIS BEAT FOR 20 YEARS ON THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

✓ FOR 12 OF THOSE YEARS HE HAS SERVED AS PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD.

✓ REALIGNMENT OF BEATS MAKES IT EVEN MORE IMPORTANT TO ELECT A SUPERVISOR WHO CAN START IMMEDIATELY. THIS IS NOT THE TIME TO BREAK IN A NEW MAN.

A WORD OF CAUTION

Some of the answers to the complex problems facing the people of Beat Two have been making the rounds.

¶ Most of these statements, in the form of campaign promises, can be attributed to a lack of knowledge of County government by other candidates.

¶ Nothing would please me more than to put a playground in every area and a sanitary landfill in every Beat.

¶ This is not realistic, and certainly cannot be done within established Federal guidelines, without a substantial increase in taxes.

¶ To promise otherwise is naive.

THE NEXT FOUR YEARS ARE CRITICAL!

—LOOK AT THE RECORD—

- ✓ HANCOCK COUNTY PORT AND HARBOR
- ✓ COUNTY HEALTH CENTER IMPROVEMENTS.
- ✓ STENNIS FIELD
- ✓ SENIOR CITIZENS ACTIVITIES
- ✓ BUCCANEER PARK
- ✓ VO-TECH CENTER
- ✓ BAYOU CADET

The man you choose to represent you for the next four years will face challenges in every area of responsibility.

Funding the many departments of County Government; facing the problems of Legislative reassessment; the uncertainty of Federal Revenue Sharing Funds; and the fact that the Severance Tax on oil and gas revenues in the county is getting smaller, are just a few of the challenges facing the man you elect.

I submit to you that I have performed for 20 years—in good economic times and bad—with honesty, fairness and integrity.

I will not promise you anything that cannot be realistically accomplished. I pledge to you that the pressing problems of Beat Two, in the new area and the old, whether it be roads, bridges, drainage, parks or landfills, are my only priority and my only job.

All my energy, knowledge and experience will be devoted to solving these problems.

As I have worked with the commercial and sports fishermen at Bayou Cadet, I will also work with the fishermen of Pearlington in that they have public docking facilities at the Public Way.

RE-ELECT BERT COURREGÉ Board Of Supervisors DISTRICT ONE HANCOCK COUNTY ON BALLOT NO. 115

Your Vote And Support Will Be Greatly Appreciated

Thank you, BERT COURREGÉ

Submitted by Bert Courregé, candidate for re-election as Supervisor of District One—Paid for by Friends in District One.

The Larry August Ladner, Sr. family, my two sons Larry, Jr. age 11, Brett, age 8, and my wife Mary would like to thank all the people of Hancock County who have been so nice in greeting us in their homes and at public and social events. It has been a privilege and an honor. No words could ever express our gratitude for this honor, nor could money ever exchange this for your friendship. It is impossible to see everyone in the county. I, Larry, have tried to do so, but the economy is tight and the time I have had allotted for this was short. So at this time I would like to extend my friendship to those of you whom I haven't been in contact with to accept my invitation in considering voting for LARRY AUGUST LADNER, SR. as your next Tax Assessor-Collector of Hancock County. Remember youth brings new ideas and without new ideas the economy doesn't move forward. All I ask of you is to give me a chance and I'll show you how grateful and how our office will be a place that will welcome you with friendship.

We are currently engaged in a county-wide reappraisal program which will be complete in the latter part of 1984. I am very interested in the outcome of this reappraisal which means taxes will increase in 1985. Taxes is a bad word, it's something we must all pay. I can't promise you I will eliminate taxes because we can't be a growing county without taxes, but I do promise you every problem will be evaluated and weighed with a fair and open mind.

*Update to a computer system to eliminate wasted time and confusion, to see that your taxes are paid in the correct place and with prompt service.

*Push for legislature to increase homestead exemption, homeowners are currently exempt on the first $5,000 of assessed value of residential property. This would lower your taxes.

*Subsidized taxes from the government on land that is idle in the buffer zone area. This would be an asset to offset tax increases.

*Have a luxury tax on items that people in need can't afford: cigarettes, beer, jewelry, etc.

*Have legislature push to eliminate tax on drugs for the disabled and retired people over 65.

*New industry to put a tax escrow by year, if they remain for ten years that money would be returned to the industry.

*Make sure that all tax assessment is fair. Example, pending location of homesite, city, county, waterfront, beach front, etc...

*Mineral rights to divert back to the landowner after ten years of tax payment or have mineral holder to pay part of the taxes.

*To weigh the total tax reappraisal budget to see if the millage can be reduced.

Remember my experience in my present job as Production Control Supervisor will offer you budgeting, scheduling and present with estimating with each assessment ranging from one to eight million dollars in value. So my qualifications offer you an energetic young professional man in a position of leadership. LARRY AUGUST LADNER, SR. will bring all those qualifications and more to the Tax Assessor and Collector's office. So invest your vote of confidence in LARRY AUGUST LADNER, SR. August 2, 1983 and get the best of your tax dollar.

RE-ELECT EDWARD D. "EDDIE" MURTAGH, JR. ASSESSOR-TAX COLLECTOR

I have had the pleasure of serving the people of HANCOCK COUNTY in the ASSESSOR-TAX COLLECTOR office for the past TWELVE years, SIX as your Assessor-Tax Collector and SIX as Chief Deputy Tax Collector under the late Assessor-Tax Collector George E. Helmsmann.

I am married to the former Beryl Bourgeois and we are the parents of eight children, Beth Goelner, Mary Douglas Chevis, Evelyn Yarbrough, Anne Meadows, Terry Willson, Abbie Hearn, David Murtagh and Carrie Murtagh. We have twelve grandchildren.

I graduated from St. Stanislaus in 1943 and entered the U.S. Army upon graduation. I served for two years in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

During the past several years I have prepared myself for the complexities of the assessing office by successfully completing courses in Property Assessment Valuation, The Approaches to Value, Mapping and Personal Property. The Tax Commission requires that each assessing office have at least one certified assessment evaluator. I have been certified by the Mississippi State Tax Commission as an Assessment Evaluator.

My present duties consist of the operation of the Hancock County Assessor office which presently has a 60 million dollar assessment in our county. I am also charged with the responsibility of collecting taxes. At present this office is collecting in excess of two and a half million dollars annually. Audit after State Audit has proven that the collection methods practiced by our office are accurate and up to date.

The County has undertaken the court ordered re-appraisal and decided to conduct this program by using the "In House Method." This method does the job using local personnel thus saving the county and its taxpayers at least a million dollars. I feel that our program will not only be successful but will be a model for other counties to follow. While this program at best is most difficult, we will not only have the trained personnel to complete the program but will have the personnel available to maintain the program in the future. By utilizing and training local talent, your TAX DOLLARS have remained in the county.

The operation of the ASSESSOR-TAX COLLECTOR office is big business, it is your business. I feel that I have the experience and the knowledge to continue to operate these offices in an exemplary manner that will bring credit not only to the county but to its citizens as well.

I consider your vote not only a privilege but a bond of trust between us.

THANK YOU,

EDWARD D. "EDDIE" MURTAGH, JR.

(Paid Pol. Adv. by Eddie D. Murtagh Jr., Candidate for Re-Election, Tax Assessor-Collector.)

RUSSELL J. ELLIOTT

Candidate

DISTRICT 5 SUPERVISOR

In this final issue, I congratulate my opponents on a hard-fought, clean campaign.

One thing I did find was a predominate lack of interest among the younger citizens. This must be corrected because the future belongs to them.

I pledge to originate a political orientation program, involving these younger citizens into the realm of politicians and the different responsibilities of each elected official.

My program would be to enlighten potential office holders, particularly young citizens, and afford the opportunity to be involved in the workings of the county.

Please younger citizens realize the future is in your hands.

NO ONE SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO SEEK AN OFFICE UNLESS THEY ARE KNOWLEDGEABLE OF AND QUALIFIED TO PERFORM THE DUTIES OF THE OFFICE THEY SEEK.

TO ALL VOTERS please consider electing someone who will put the future in the rightful prospective.

I earnestly solicit your vote for the good and growth of Hancock County.

THANK ALL OF YOU for your patience during this campaign and I hope you have found that RUSSELL J. ELLIOTT is the person that can best serve the future of our great County.

Please vote for RUSSELL J. ELLIOTT on Tuesday, August 2nd, Supervisor - District 5, Hancock County.

HANCOCK COUNTY

Clark Creek Natural Area boasts rare and endangered plants, animals

The rough terrain south of Clark Creek located near Woodville in Wilkinson County is said to have been used as a place of solace over the years for escaped convicts from Angola Prison.

But Bill Quisenberry, chief director of land management, and the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Committee, added after facing the steep hills and intense thicket, the convicts usually return to the security of the prison.

Since the establishment of Clark Creek Natural Area in 1976, the undeveloped land has been used by scores of people including Louisiana State University revelers, duck and deer hunters, families in search of a quiet weekend outing and even Governor William Winter and his wife.

Prior to the acquisition of the land by the Heritage Committee, the area received no maintenance or development, but through a grant given by Wildlife Conservation, the committee and the University of Southern Mississippi have entered the first phase of a project to preserve the natural beauty of the area for future generations.

Newton Wilkes, assistant professor of the Recreation Department at the University of Southern Mississippi, is presently serving as a consultant to the Department of Wildlife Conservation on a trails project for the area.

The project involves developing a hiking trail, rehabilitating eroded land and determining land areas subjected to high environment impact.

"My main concern is to beautify the area," said Wilkes, "and when people use the area, to make sure the impact is minimal."

Mark Nelson, a graduate of USM with a degree in recreation, was hired as the park director to make sure the land is not abused by visitors. The Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Program exists for the purpose of acquiring land and water areas for public hunting, fishing and related outdoor recreational activities. The program acquires property for the state by purchases, donations or by will.

Clark Creek's main area of land, which consists of 427 acres, was donated by International Paper Company. This donation is the first industrial gift of land in Mississippi to be set aside as a natural area.

Because Clark Creek has vast and unique geological formations and both rare and endangered plant and animal life, a proposed system has been set up to preserve and protect them. This proposed system is a first for natural areas in Mississippi.

Wilkes said at least 20 waterfalls have been found on the land and range in height from 20 to 25 feet. The trail Wilkes has planned will only cover the first few miles of the area. The remaining acreage of land, which is covered with an abundance of beech and magnolia trees, will be left untouched.

The area contains animal life that is either endangered or is threatened to become so. The Black Bear, a certain type of land snail and a fish species called the Southern Red Belly Dace are all endangered habitat found in the Clark Creek area.

Quisenberry pointed out that certain types of rare vines, ferns and bushes at Clark Creek are unquestionably unique. It is the only preserved plant community of its type to be found in the Southeastern Evergreen Forest Region, the Deciduous Forest Formation of eastern North America and even in the deciduous forests of the world. This unique plant community has attracted field botanists in search of these rare species.

According to the Clark Creek Management Plan written by Lou Strong, executive director of the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation, the land "may well be the only forest of the area remaining intact and preserved for study."

Monitoring of the Natural Area includes staff from the Natural Science Museum, the District Wildlife Biologist, law enforcement personnel in Wilkinson County and personnel with the Forestry Commission. Additional assistance comes from conservation organizations such as the Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, Boy Scouts of America and USM staff and students.

Quisenberry said that these certain parties will be encouraged to report any incidents of arson, timber theft and vandalism, but because of budgetary limitations, the hiring of full-time employees cannot be seen any time in the near future.

"The federal grant we received will last about three months," said Quisenberry. "After that runs out, I can't really say what we will do. It wouldn't take a whole lot of funds for the upkeep of Clark Creek, but it will take some."

Clark Creek is presently managed as a day use area only, but the public will soon be able to enjoy its beauty both day and night. "Not many people from Mississippi know about Clark Creek," said Wilkes, "but I guarantee that they will return after seeing it one time."

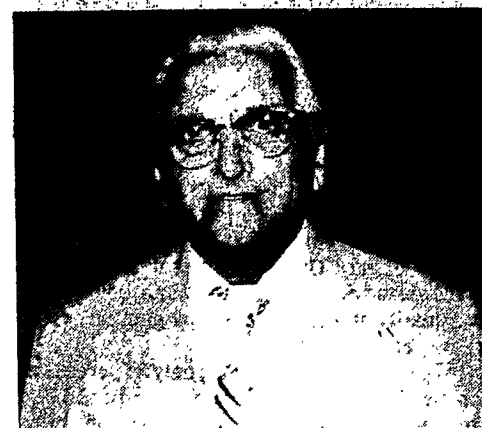

CLARK CREEK NATURAL AREA, located near Woodville, hosts an array of plant and animal life which is presently being developed for the general public. At least 20 waterfalls have been found on the 427 acres of land which was the first industrial gift of land in Mississippi to be set aside as a natural area. Looking over one of the waterfalls at Clark Creek are Newton Wilkes, assistant professor of the USM Recreation Department; Mark Nelson, park director; Bill Quisenberry, director of Land Management; and John Phares, director, Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Elect

SYLVAN J. LADNER, JR.

AS YOUR SHERIFF OF HANCOCK COUNTY

My opponent states in his political ad in the Sea Coast Echo on Thursday July 28th, 1983, that during his three and half (3½) years in office more criminal indictments have been returned in the history of Hancock County and in the first six months of this year thirty-eight (38) criminals have been sent to the Penitentiary.

He also states that four (4) years ago only sixteen (16) criminals were sent to the Penitentiary each year. I agree with his statement because three (3) years and seven (7) months ago I finished my 16th year as Sheriff of Hancock County. During the sixteen years that I served as Sheriff of Hancock we had very good law enforcement. I was allowed only nine (9) full-time deputies and I had six auxiliary deputies who volunteered their services with no expense to the county.

On May 12, 1976, the largest amount of Marijuana, 19,600 lbs., was seized in Hancock County and eight male subjects were arrested. One boat, two cars, two trucks, an eighteen wheel tractor trailer and some surveillance equipment was seized. This raid was conducted by the F.B.I., U.S. Customs, Miss. State Narcotics Dept., D.E.A., Miss. Highway Patrol and Hancock County Sheriff's Department. After this raid our crime rate was practically reduced to zero.

The reason why we are having so many arrests for various violations is because of the great deal of narcotics that are being sold and grown throughout Hancock County. I have received this information from many people that I have visited during my campaign and more time should be spent by the Sheriff's Department arresting the sellers, or pushers because when the supply is stopped then the crime rate will decrease.

My last budget approved while I was sheriff was as follows: October 1st, 1979, thru September 30th, 1980, was $229,225.16. Of this amount I used one quarter of this budget for the last three months I was in office, which amounted to $57,305.63. This left my opponent a balance of $171,919.53 for his nine (9) months in this fiscal year, but he exceeded that amount by $30,000.00 and his budget had to be amended to show this increase.

My opponent's budget for the next fiscal year, October 1st, 1980 thru September 30th, 1981 was $348,537.00. This shows an increase of his budget in the amount of $89,311.84 over the previous year.

My opponent's budget for the fiscal year October 1st, 1981, thru September 30th, 1982, was $374,186.00, an increase of $25,649.00 over the previous years.

My opponent's budget for the fiscal year October 1st, 1982 thru September 30, 1983 was $395,459.89, and increase of $21,273.89, over the previous year.

This shows an increase of $166,234.73 in his budgets from January 7th, 1980, thru the present time.

My opponent has seventeen (17) full-time deputies and six auxiliary deputies that are now receiving pay for their services.

When I was first elected sheriff in August 1955, I attended the University of Mississippi, for the First Annual Training course for New Sheriffs. In December 1955, I attended Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training School for a course in fingerprint classification, this course was held at Headquarters - Mississippi Highway Patrol - Jackson, and with the cooperation of the F.B.I. In September 1971, I attended a Traffic Records Seminar, sponsored by the Governor's Highway Safety Program, Attorney General, and Dept. of Public Safety, State of Mississippi. September 1972, I attended the University of Mississippi for an Organized Crime Seminar.

In May 1975, I received a Certificate of Appreciation in Recognition of my service as a volunteer to the Hancock County Senior Citizens. In October 1975, I received a Certificate of Appreciation from Mississippi American Revolution Bicentennial Commission. In October 1979, I received a Certificate of Appreciation from Joppa Temple A.A.O.N.M.S., in recognition of my generous contribution to the Continued Philanthropy of Shrinedom.

The above describes my record as serving as your Sheriff for sixteen (16) years.

REMEMBER THE VOTE YOU CAST ON AUGUST 2nd, 1983, MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT VOTE THAT YOU HAVE EVER CAST. IT WILL BE FOR FOUR LONG YEARS, AND THE RESULTS OF THIS VOTE CANNOT BE CHANGED. SO BEFORE YOU GO TO THE POLLS CHECK THE EXPERIENCE, QUALIFICATIONS AND PAST PERFORMANCES OF THE CANDIDATES, AND CHECK WITH YOURSELF WHO YOU THINK AND KNOW WILL MAKE THE BEST SHERIFF. ## State's cotton crop quality poor, quantity lowest since Civil War

BY JIMMY BONNER
Extension Service

Cotton harvest is months away, but officials are already concerned about the quality of the state's smallest cotton crop since the Civil War.

Quality of cotton produced in the Mid-South has dropped in the last several years and a late crop this year and other factors offer potential for more of the same.

A group of 225 cotton ginners and farmers met here recently to look into ways to improve the quality of Mid-South cotton, for years the envy of the cotton producing world.

The Mid-South includes Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana and Missouri. About 1.8 million acres of cotton are grown in the five-state region.

Bill Mayfield, an agricultural engineer with the federal Extension Service in Memphis, said while the quality of cotton produced in the region remains high, improvement can be made.

"We've taken cotton quality for granted in the last few years," Mayfield said. "I think we need to get back to the basics in producing cotton to improve our grades."

Grade is one of three main indicators of cotton quality. Grade involves such factors as foreign matter, color and preparation or ginning of the cotton.

Last year, only 34 percent of the cotton produced in Mississippi was of high enough quality to be classed as strict low middling or better, a quality goal aimed for by producers and ginners alike.

Improving the grade in cotton is important to growers because mechanically harvested U.S. cotton is still compared in quality with hand-harvested foreign crops.

Mayfield gave figures to show that grades of Mid-South cotton have dropped an average of 1.5 percent each year since the early 1970s.

"Much of the drop in grade is due to poor harvesting weather," Mayfield said. "But management practices also are a factor in the declining grades."

Improving the grade is primarily a matter of reducing foreign matter in the harvested cotton, Mayfield said. Foreign matter includes leaves, weeds, mechanical particles and other trash harvested with the cotton.

Other quality factors such as staple length and micronaire are high in Mid-South cotton. Staple length refers to the length of the cotton fiber while micronaire indicates maturity.

Mayfield said better prices for higher quality cotton give farmers an economic incentive to deliver improved grades.

Since last October prices for strict low middling grades have ranged $25 to $40 per 480-pound bale higher than for low middling, a lower grade. With large supplies expected in 1983, the gap is expected to widen.

"While there is a worldwide surplus of cotton, there is no surplus of high quality cotton," Mayfield said.

Cotton is classed according to grades ranging in quality from strict middling to below grade. In the early 1970s, more than 50 percent of Mississippi's cotton graded strict low middling or better.

Officials say the decline in cotton grades goes back to the 1950s when mechanical harvesting replaced hand picking. Wide use of selling crops in advance beginning in the early 1960s also is credited with declining grades.

Lower grades cause problems for ginners who must separate foreign matter from the cotton and also to producers who often settle for lower prices for the crop.

"Producers should set a goal of bringing good quality cotton to the gin," Mayfield said. "A ginner can do some things about quality, but he can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

Mayfield also said only a very small percentage of the grade problem originates at the gin. Farmers can reduce foreign matter and improve grades by controlling weeds, defoliating crops correctly and by properly adjusting harvesting equipment.

Late development such as in the current crop normally affects the fiber maturity, Mayfield said, and favorable weather with good harvesting conditions is needed to reduce potential quality problems.

State farmers planted 720,000 acres of cotton this spring, smallest since the Civil War. High yields were expected on the reduced acreage, but poor growing conditions have reduced crop potential.

Plant broccoli, cauliflower

Delicious fresh broccoli, snowy white cauliflower and firm heads of crisp blue-green cabbage can all be yours this fall if you'll take the time to plant them in your garden this summer.

These three vegetables have the same growing requirements for success so you can treat them alike when planting seed, fertilizing, watering and controlling insects and diseases.

The best time to plant seeds is from late July through early August. Some gardeners prefer to plant the seeds directly in the garden. This is fine if water is available and some precautions are taken to prevent crickets and rabbits from feeding on the small seedlings.

Prepare the seed bed as if planting in spring. Be sure to mix the fertilizer thoroughly with the soil. Use about two quarts of 6-8-8 fertilizer per 100 feet of row. Place the seed in a shallow drill and cover with one-fourth to one-half inch of a mixture of one-half peat moss and one-half vermiculite. This mix won't crust so the area can be watered and kept moist to aid in germination.

Some gardeners may prefer to start plants in cups or trays and set transplants in the garden in September. Both methods, direct seeding and transplants, work.

Chances of success with these vegetables are greatly improved by selecting the correct varieties to plant. In the past several years, seed companies have developed many excellent early-maturing hybrids ideal for Mississippi gardens.

Several varieties of broccoli will do well. Among these are "Green Comet," "Green Duke," "Premium Crop,"

"Bonanza," and "Prominence." The best cauliflower variety is "Snow King" but "White Contessa" and "Snow Crown" also will give good results. "Stone Head" is an excellent cabbage hybrid to grow and seed is usually fairly easy to locate.

In selecting a variety, the main point to keep in mind is that it must be early maturing. Don't let the price of seed discourage you from buying seed of the varieties recommended. With grocery store prices, harvesting just three or four heads of broccoli, cauliflower or cabbage will more than pay for the seed.

Since seed of the recommended varieties may not be available locally plan to locate your seed sources early so you'll have seed on hand at planting time.

It is very important to provide adequate soil moisture.

Never let the soil get completely dry but also be careful not to drown the plants. Apply a sidedressing of ammonium nitrate in September and again in October, using one pint per 100 feet of row.

The major insect problems once the seedling stage is passed is likely to be leaf eating worms. Imported cabbage moths and cabbage loopers can be controlled using one of the biological worm sprays or dusts. Check the plants daily for small worms on the undersides of the leaves and begin treating before the worms have a chance to eat holes in the leaves.

You should begin to harvest broccoli and cauliflower by mid-October and cabbage shortly after that. Each cauliflower plant produces only one head. It is not necessary to tie leaves over the developing head to keep it white but be sure to cut the head while it is still smooth and tight. If the segments begin to separate you've let it get too old.

Broccoli heads should be several inches across and with no yellow flowers at harvest. Cut the head with four to five inches of stem but be sure to leave most of the leaves on the plant. Broccoli plants will form side sprouts with small heads that provide several more cuttings until the plants freeze.

Harvest cabbage when the heads feel firm and certainly before they become over-mature and crack.

You may feel that you missed a good time to grow these vegetables if you didn't get them planted this spring, but fall grown broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage is the best.

ELECT JAMES H. (Jimmy) THORNTON SUPERVISOR DISTRICT ONE HANCOCK COUNTY

I would like to announce my Political Platform as a candidate for Board of Supervisor of District One.

ROADS: The county has X amount of dollars for material to black top or gravel our roads. As supervisor I plan to black top as many as funds will allow, starting with the most needy (most traveled and used by children who ride school buses) and to gravel as many others as possible.

DRAINAGE: Approximately 99% of the ditches in Beat One need to be cleaned and in some places even re-dug and once this is done not wait 3 or 4 years to do it again, but maintain them on a regular basis. If a culvert is stopped up, clean it, and if necessary, replace it. How else can you get water to drain?

BEACHES: A commission has recently been formed to acquire federal funding to repump our sand beaches. In my opinion this commission should have been put together years ago. Camille was the biggest destructor to the beach and it has been deteriorating ever since. As your next Supervisor I will help in every way possible to speed up this program and when it is accomplished, I will personally see that our beach is maintained on a regular basis.

SIGNS: Initiate a program for installing road and street signs throughout our district to better aid our police, Mobile Medic, and fire department units, in reaching a person in distress. I am sure that there are not enough funds to do this all at one time, but if we do even 10, 20 or 30 signs per year, it will eventually be 100% complete. But if we do not even make an effort it will never become a reality.

JOBS: I believe it to be outrageous and costly for our fellow neighbors to have to travel for employment. (I have done this for some 12 to 13 years). Hancock County has great potential to bring industrial, commercial and residential work to this area. We have the Port and Harbor site, NASA, the new ammunition plant, and our soon to be beautiful beaches to add to our already one of a kind Gulf Coast.

★ These are just some of the programs and new ideas that as your next full-time Supervisor I will be working toward. I also want you, the people of District One to know that I welcome all comments and suggestions that may also further the progress of Hancock County. I believe that by visiting with the local civic groups I can learn first-hand what the particular problems are that face each community.

BACKGROUND: I work for Landis Construction Company, located in New Orleans, Louisiana.

I began there as a laborer with a shovel in my hands. Since then I have been a time keeper, handling business transmittals, ordering and delivering of material and payroll. My next step was carpenter, carpenter foreman, general carpenter foreman, and now assistant superintendent.

The jobs that I have been affiliated with as assistant superintendent usually last 14 to 20 months, and range between 6 to 16 million dollars. We've always finished the jobs ahead of schedule, and with money left over. I never see the actual dollar bill but with my signature alone, I have the authority to order and buy whatever material is needed for the job.

This is just to show you what confidence and trust this company has in me, and I hope to win the same trust and confidence from you, the people of Beat One, Hancock County.

I also acquired an associates in science degree in building technology and safety. This was done by working days and attending school at night for 3½ years maintaining a 3.5 average.

I feel my work record shows that I have the Education and the Ability to lead men and also that I am not afraid to accept a new challenge.

LET'S GET HANCOCK COUNTY ON THE MOVE

In the past few weeks we as voters of Hancock County were confronted with many candidates seeking election to public office. It is our duty and responsibility as qualified voters to choose the candidates who are BEST QUALIFIED and whose MAIN INTERESTS are of the people of Hancock County and who will work in the best interest of our community, county, state and country.

If elected I will be available to ALL the people ALL of the time as a full time WORKING SUPERVISOR with the best interest of our community. I would consider it a great honor and privilege to serve you the people of District One-Hancock County as your next Supervisor.

In this campaign I have tried to speak to every elector of District One, to those I was unable to contact, I earnestly solicit your vote and support.

With your help and support we can once again make District One and the entire County of Hancock a better place to live.

PLEASE WEIGH THE QUALIFICATIONS AND SINCERITY OF EACH CANDIDATE FOR EACH OFFICE BEFORE CASTING YOUR VOTE IN THE AUG. 2 DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY.

SINCERELY,
JAMES H. (JIMMY) THORNTON
CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ONE SUPERVISOR

Killer hurricanes pack triple threat: high winds, torrential rains and the storm surge

Hurricanes are killers. These devastating storms pose a triple threat to any community they strike: the high winds; the torrential flood-producing rains inland; and the storm surge—the real killer of hurricanes.

Acting like a giant bulldozer, the storm surge is a dome of water often 50 miles wide that sweeps everything from its path where the eye of the hurricane makes landfall.

Water in a storm surge can rise 20 feet or more above normal tides. Huge waves above this dome of water pound the shoreline and inundate low-lying areas, cutting off some escape routes from the shore.

The stronger the hurricane, the higher the storm surge will be. Nine out of 10 people who die in a hurricane drown in the storm surge.

The floods and flash floods produced by the torrential rains of a hurricane are major threats to lives and property. Although hurricanes weaken quickly as they sweep inland, they often dump 6 to 12 inches of rain or more over the areas they cross, resulting in severe flooding.

A hurricane's winds also cause great destruction. For some structures, such as mobile homes, a hurricane's high winds can cause much damage. Hurricanes can also spawn tornadoes which cause additional devastation.

The greatest threat from a hurricane's winds is from flying debris. Wind-driven sand and surging water cause great damage and are lethal, as are airborne signs, flying glass, lawn furniture, and construction materials.

Louis O. Guiffreda, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), stresses the importance of hurricane preparedness.

Knowing the designated evacuation routes for your community, staying alert to warnings, and following official instructions as quickly as possible could save your life.

Guiffreda said FEMA is encouraging emergency preparedness programs in the state and local government levels for a variety of natural and man-made disasters and emergencies, including the hurricane.

More people now live in coastal areas than ever before, many on the paths of past hurricanes. About 8 in 10 coastal residents from Texas to Maine have never experienced a hurricane. As coastal populations increase, so does the potential for tremendous devastation from a hurricane.

"Many coastal residents are apathetic about hurricanes," said Dr. Neil L. Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, "and that's a big concern for us."

"We are now more vulnerable to hurricanes than we ever have been. If people don't regard a hurricane as a serious threat to life and property, many deaths and much damage could be caused," Frank added.

He said many coastal residents mistakenly believe they have already experienced a savage hurricane, and that this perception increases the level of apathy.

Hurricane David, for example, merely brushed the southeastern coast of Florida in 1979. Its most violent action was over the ocean.

However, many residents in that area believe they weathered a major hurricane and now regard hurricane watches and warnings lightly, Frank said.

Many hurricane-related deaths occur because warnings are not heeded in time. The National Weather Service generally gives 12 to 24 hours of warning of an approaching hurricane.

A hurricane watch means hurricane conditions have become a threat to coastal areas. When a hurricane watch is issued, listen for further weather advisories and be prepared to act promptly if a hurricane warning is issued.

A hurricane warning means that hurricane winds (74 miles per hour or higher) and storms are threatening a specific coastal and inland area within 24 hours. Emergency actions should begin immediately.

If a hurricane threatens your area, keep listening to your radio, television and NOAA Weather Radio for Weather Service updates and special instructions from local government.

If local government advises evacuation for your area, do so immediately. Keep your car radio on to listen for further instructions, such as the location of shelters, and weather updates.

Be sure to avoid low-lying areas which may quickly be flooded. Hurricanes can cause devastating flooding, not just along the coast, but far inland as well.

Leave early from low-lying areas that may be ravaged by high tides or storm waves. Leave mobile homes and campers for more stable shelter; they can overturn easily in the powerful winds. Do not stay in your car; go to a shelter.

Whether you live near the coast where evacuation may be necessary or inland, following are some tips for protecting yourself and your family in a hurricane:

—Keep an emergency kit containing a supply of non-perishable foods, a radio and flashlight, a fire extinguisher, batteries and first-aid equipment stocked and handy.

Check battery-powered radios and flashlights now. Hurricanes can cause power failures, and a battery-powered radio could be your only source of information during a hurricane emergency. You also may want to keep candles and matches.

Also, be sure your car's fuel tank is filled, because gas stations will be inoperable during a power failure.

—Store drinking water in clean bathtubs, jugs, bottles, and cookware; your town's water system may be contaminated or damaged by the storm.

—Secure outdoor objects that might blow away. Garbage cans, signs, garden tools, lawn furniture and other normally harmless items can become lethal missiles in a hurricane's winds. Boats should be moored securely or moved to a safer area before the storm.

—Protect windows with storm shutters or wide tape, such as fiber or making tape. Large windows may be broken by wind pressure, and all windows are vulnerable to flying debris. Tape is a good way to prevent flying glass. Tape each window diagonally, from corner to corner, and also in a checkerboard pattern.

—During a hurricane, remain indoors. Blowing debris can injure and kill. Travel is extremely dangerous.

—Be especially wary of the eye of the hurricane. Once the storm center begins to pass directly overhead, the winds will drop off for 30 minutes or more. On the other side of the eye, winds will increase rapidly to hurricane force and will come from the opposite side.

—If a power failure occurs, turn off large current-consuming appliances such as air conditioners, television sets, washers and dryers, electric stoves, and other appliances that have a heating element in them.

—Be alert for tornado warnches and warnings; tornadoes are often spawned by hurricanes. If you receive a tornado warning, seek shelter immediately, preferably below ground.

These precautions can help you immediately before and during the storm, but there is another step you can take now to provide long-term protection for your home and property—buy flood insurance.

Losses from flooding are not covered by homeowners' insurance policies. Flood insurance, however, is available through the National Flood Insurance Program, which is administered by FEMA.

If your community participates in the National Flood Insurance Program, you are eligible to apply for coverage. A call to your insurance agent or broker starts the process to cover your home, possessions and business.

A five-day wait is required for your policy to become effective. Renters can buy policies to protect their property, too.

For more information on flood insurance, call your local agent or write to Federal Emergency Management Agency, Federal Insurance Administration, Washington, D.C., 20472.

Be prepared for a hurricane. Have an emergency preparedness kit ready and now, while you have time, find out about the safe evacuation routes and shelters in your area, as well as your area's flood history, by contacting your state and local emergency management officials.

Ultrasonic waves utilized in kidney stone removal

Ultrasonic waves are being used by Ochsner Clinic urologists in New Orleans to break up kidney stones which are too large to be passed out of the body in the usual way.

The technique, which is made possible by a new piece of equipment called a "percutaneous nephroscope," permits the physicians to remove the stone fragments without open surgery.

The procedure takes less than two hours and requires close collaboration with radiologists who help in locating the stone and visualizing the entire procedure by the use of a fluoroscope, says Dr. Harold A. Fuselier Jr.

He, together with his colleagues, Drs. Mims Gage Ochsner, William Brannan and Stephen L. Guice III, point to the obvious advantages this treatment offers some patients, particularly those who repeatedly develop kidney stones.

"The benefit to the patient usually includes a shorter hospital stay of perhaps four days as compared to a week or more for open surgery, less postoperative pain, and elimination of recuperation time of four to six weeks which open surgery demands," Dr. Fuselier adds.

Kidney stones have been plaguing man since ancient times. One is said to have been found in the mummified remains of an Egyptian who lived about 4400 B.C.

The pain caused by the stones is described as one of the most severe ever experienced by man.

Perhaps one of the measures of the severity of the pain can be gauged by the fact that patients consented to submit themselves to surgery to have stones removed even before the advent of anesthesia.

According to medical literature, doctors attempted the surgery only because the condition was intolerable.

"This is the first time in modern medicine that we have been able to do anything other than major surgery to the kidney stone itself. Up until now, if the stone was large, it usually caused an obstruction and major surgery had to be performed to remove it," he explained.

Dr. Fuselier cautions that this new procedure is not recommended for the majority of kidney stone patients.

"In 90 percent of the cases, the very small stones which cause the severe spasm and great pain are less than five millimeters in size and are passed spontaneously by the patient.

When a stone approaches one centimeter in size or larger, it tends to stay in the kidney, pelvis or upper ureter where it causes an obstruction sometimes accompanied by bleeding. This is the situation which, up until now, necessitated that the surgeon make an incision across the back beneath the ribcage to remove the stone," he says.

The new nephroscope permits physicians to look directly into the kidney. When the patient is anesthetized, a small hole is made in the skin and a special set of catheters is inserted and guided by Ochsner radiologist Dr. Roger Tutton who is able to visualize the blocked area by injecting a dye.

The tract is widened and the instrument, which is about the size of one's little finger, is inserted into the kidney area where the stone is lodged, Dr. Fuselier relates. The ultrasound probe is then pushed through the scope to do its work of breaking up the large stone with ultrasonic waves.

The fragments of the stone can also be removed through the same instrument while the area is being constantly irrigated.

Although this new technique offers a significant advance in the treatment of kidney stones, Dr. Brannan, department chairman, cautions that it is not by any means foolproof.

"If any complications develop during the procedure, it is always possible to bring the patient to surgery and proceed as before. However, in cases of those who repeatedly form kidney stones and scar tissue from previous surgery, it may actually be easier for the surgeon and better for the kidney, causing less damage than repeated open surgery," he explains.

"Not all stones in the kidney require surgical removal and many of those which do may still be managed better by conventional means," he adds.

Cancer Signs Set

Many cancers are curable if found and treated promptly. Early detection is largely up to you.

How can you determine when it is time to go to your doctor and ask him or her to check out your symptoms?

A pamphlet from the American Medical Association lists the American Cancer Society's seven warning signals:

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Hoarseness or cough.
6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Change in wart or mole.

If any of these symptoms persists longer than two weeks, see your doctor. It might not be cancer. But these symptoms are a warning that an examination is needed.

Cancer is an unrestrained growth of abnormal cells. They spread by infiltrating adjacent tissue, by traveling through the circulatory and lymphatic systems to distant locations in the body, or by any combination of these. This growth will be fatal if not checked.

Elect GARY L. BENNETT CONSTABLE DISTRICT TWO HANCOCK COUNTY

I am Gary L. Bennett. I am seeking the office of Constable Beat 2. In the last few days of my campaign, I am asking the citizens of Hancock County Beat 2 to vote for me in the August 2 Primary.

I feel that I am the most qualified man for the job. I developed an interest in law enforcement four years ago. I have worked for the Hancock County Sheriffs Department for the past 3½ years. I have averaged from one to three nights a week on my own time. In addition to working for the Sheriffs Department, I have attended an accident investigation school with the Mississippi State Highway Patrol. I have completed the NRA Police Handgun qualification course and I have attended seminars in relation to other aspects of law enforcement. I feel that these qualifications would enable me to do a good job as your constable.

I would like to take this opportunity to make a personal apology if I failed to see you in my campaign, it was hard and the time was short due to the redistricting

AMERICAN LEGALESE

The U.S. Toxic Substances Control Act's 46-page length compared to a French law which reportedly does about the same thing is only two pages of length has been used as an example of fundamentally different approaches to legal matters by Americans and Europeans.

In a recent article in 'Europe' magazine, George Lesser of the U.S. Bureau of National Affairs, suggested that Americans may have become too wordy and contentious in the legislative processes.

One reason for this he pointed out is that U.S. legislation is written by one independent branch of government for interpretation by a second independent branch, and for implementation by still another independent branch.

By contrast, most European laws are written by the same people who are going to have to carry them out. Further, Europeans are not disposed to challenge governmental authority every step of the way as we do here in the land of the free and the brave.

Lesser, editor of 'International Environment Reporter,' points out that in America legislation is the product of an ongoing adversary proceeding through Congress, administrative agencies, and the court system.

Thus the strict rules governing proceedings, public hearings, and formal comments all favor a maximum opportunity for advocacy, and virtually no opportunity for negotiation to simplify matters.

Consequently, that observer concludes, American laws constantly are revised, and court decisions constantly are appealed under pressure from all of these advocates.

PAN AM CRASH

The aftermath of the crash of Pan Am flight 759 in Kenner, La., last summer is covered in the next "Frontline" documentary, "After the Crash," at 9 p.m., Friday, Aug. 5, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Within days of the accident, considered the second-worst air disaster in U.S. history, survivors and families of the 153 persons who died were called and visited by personal injury lawyers and their representatives trying to enlist them as clients. At the same time, airline insurance company representatives were trying their best to keep the bereaved families from bringing suit.

Hence, nothing is permanent except the adversary relationship which means that everything winds up in the hands of lawyers who, in turn, have a vested interest in preserving the adversary relationship.

Lesser contends further that the U.S. encounters extraordinary difficulties in enactments concerning the environment because it has to start nearer scratch in most instances because of the relative youth of this nation.

And he implies that the United States is not accustomed to asserting much self discipline.

Rather, it is yet a revolutionary concept here that one's freedom to swing one's fist ends where another's nose begins, as suggested by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Another reason offered by Lesser for U.S. citizens' proneness to hassle is that we have no tradition of obeying government, much less fearing it.

Contrarily, we tend to have an inborn skepticism toward most anything the government tries to do and we hasten to fight it in the courts, in the streets, or through simple disobedience.

Europeans on the other hand, have thousands of years of history of absolute and often unbridled tyranny covered with but a thin veneer of democracy, if that.

People there have had good reasons not to question their governments, much less challenge them in courts.

The analyst also points out that American civil servants do not have much prestige, even though many actually are highly talented, dedicated and able servants of the country and its people.

But in Europe government representatives enjoy tremendous prestige and are well paid. Their more coveted tenure of service is much longer—dealing with the same people protractedly as issues come and go.

Often the jobs are passed from generation to generation.

The author of the thought provoking article makes no effort to champion one government's approach to legislation over the others' but he does isolate some basic differences from an international viewpoint.

In this country we value our multitude of freedoms very highly, even when we may be wrong. In Europe that has not often been an accessible option.

Cono Caranna. A District Attorney We Can Trust.

How much longer can our system work without trust?

We've already put up with it for too long. We stand by and watch as the federal government investigates our elected officials. We hear how special people get special deals. We see criminals plea-bargain their way back to the streets.

But now, we can do something about it. On August 2nd, we can take a stand against crime. We can vote for Cono Caranna.

Cono Caranna wants to restore honesty and integrity to the office of District Attorney. And as our next DA, he will.

As City Attorney, he's tried some of the toughest cases ever brought before the courts—and won. He's worked closely with law enforcement for 10 years. Now, he wants to use his experience to focus all levels of law enforcement on crime in our area.

He's seen first-hand the problems in the District Attorney's office. And he's ready to do something about them.

On August 2nd, let's vote to put trust back in our legal system. Let's elect Cono Caranna, District Attorney.

Fighting and Winning Against Crime

As your Attorney General and the State's top legal officer, Bill Allain knows first-hand that crime is a continuous problem. He's been fighting it since his first day in office in 1980. And he and his staff have won over 90% of their criminal cases.

Bill Allain promises to take that fight to the Governor's Office by:

- Increasing the staff of the Bureau of Narcotics.
- Developing a strong, constitutional anti-obscenity law.
- Insuring that criminals, not victims, are punished.
- Naming a strong Board of Corrections to run a tough prison system.
- Decentralizing the prisons without forcing any county to accept a satellite prison that the residents don't want.

Bill Allain has fought for you before. Let's keep him winning against crime. Vote on August 2 to make Bill Allain your fighting Governor.

Bell seeking 'modest' rate hike for short-distance, instate calls

South Central Bell has filed tariffs with the Mississippi Public Service Commission to restructure charges for instate long distance calls.

The company will not receive any additional net revenues as a result of this filing.

With Public Service Commission approval, the new tariffs would go into effect Aug. 25.

"With this filing we are proposing changes to relate more closely the costs of providing long distance service with the rates," said J.M. McGowan, vice president of South Central Bell's Mississippi operations.

The new tariffs would encourage Calling Card calls by establishing a 50 cent charge for operator assistance while the actual conversation time would be billed at direct distance dialing rates. This is a major change from today's rate structure," he elaborated.

"Furthermore, those operator-assisted calls which require more operator work time would carry uniform flat rates to offset the cost of this service. These rates would range up to $2.25 for operator-handled, person-to-person calls plus DDD rates for actual talk time."

Other major changes include:

- establishing rate period specific billing. With rate period specific billing, if a weekday call is placed at 7:55 a.m., for example, and continues until 8:05 a.m., the first five minutes would be billed at the discounted, night rate and the second five minutes from 8 until 8:05 a.m. would be billed the full weekday rate.
- establishing a new one-minute initial period for operator-assisted calls;

- applying time-of-day discounts to the entire conversation period (including the initial one minute period) on all calls;

- eliminating the holiday discount when the legal holiday is not on the same date

—for example, If New Year's Day is on a Saturday and the legal holiday was the Friday before, no discount would be in effect on Friday; and

- modest increases in charges for short-distance calls and modest decreases in charges for longer-distance calls.

"The new tariffs should encourage our customers to use the least costly method of calling while our company will benefit through increased network efficiency," McGowan said.

Borg-Warner reports $45 million second quarter net earnings

Borg-Warner Corporation reports second quarter net earnings of $45 million, or $1 per share, on sales of $881 million, compared with $46.7 million, or $1.10 per share, on sales of $884 million in the year earlier quarter.

The diversified manufacturing and services company posted six-month earnings of $80.5 million, or $1.80 per share, a 3 percent decline from earnings of $83 million, or $1.95 per share, for the first half of 1982. Sales were $1.69 billion, compared with $1.58 billion in the six-month period last year.

Borg-Warner chairman James F. Bere' said he was encouraged by the sharp rebound in the company's automotive business and the continued strength of the chemicals/plastics and protective service operations.

Despite weakness in Borg-Warner's air conditioning and energy equipment businesses, Bere' said earnings from consolidated operations were the highest of any second quarter in the company's history.

More than offsetting this record operating performance, he said, was the lack of any meaningful equity earnings contribution from affiliate companies. Borg-Warner's equity in earnings of affiliates added 28 cents per share to total earnings in the second quarter last year, compared with only one penny per share in the quarter just ended.

The second quarter loss posted by Hughes Tool Company was responsible for the sharp falloff in Borg-Warner affiliate earnings, said Bere'.

Earnings for the quarter were also penalized (five cents per share) due to an increase in the number of common shares resulting from $100 million in adjustable rate notes issued by the company last November that are convertible into common stock.

"Earnings from the protective services group increased about 40 percent from last year's quarter, and earnings for the year should substantially exceed 1982 results."

While earnings from financial services were about even for the quarter, net earnings for the first half are about 6 percent ahead of 1982; and the group expects results for the full year to be up by at least 10 percent," Bere' said.

The chairman said earnings from air conditioning operations "were disappointing in light of the resurgence of new housing starts in the United States. Gains in the residential market were more than offset by softening in the two most profitable sectors of the company's air conditioning business — engineered systems and international sales."

The company's energy and industrial equipment group continues to struggle in capital goods markets that remain depressed and show little sign of improvement for the balance of the year, noted Bere'.

Steam Fruit For A Dessert Specialty

Serving fruit for dessert continues your good nutrition plan throughout family or company meals. By steaming foods, you preserve their nutrients, fresh taste and tender texture.

It isn't necessary to purchase special equipment; just improvise with what you have. This recipe uses a double boiler. In other instances, you can place the food between two heat proof plates that are over a pan of boiling water. You can also use a pressure cooker or a colander that fits inside a tightly covered saucepan.

Steamed Bananas Royale combines potassium rich bananas with a spicy caramel sauce made from Land O Lakes Country Morning Blend. This spread looks, tastes and cooks like butter because it is 40 percent sweet cream AA butter and 60 percent pure corn oil margarine. It's creamy fresh and full of flavor. Steamed Bananas Royale is a fruit dessert specialty that's warmly delicious for any occasion.

Steamed Bananas Royale
4 med. bananas 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 c. LAND O LAKES Country Morning Blend 1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 c. firmly packed brown sugar Sweetened whipped cream

Peel and halve bananas crosswise and then in half lengthwise. Place in top of 1-qt. double boiler. Dot with Blend; sprinkle with brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Bring water to boil in bottom of double boiler; set top pan inside. Cover, steam 6 min. and baste with melted Blend and brown sugar. Continue steaming 6 to 7 min. or until bananas are tender and brown sugar and Blend form a sauce. Place in individual serving bowls. Spoon sauce over; dollop with whipped cream. Serve immediately. YIELD: 4 servings.

FATHER/SON

Video maker Skip Sweeney presents a portrait of his late father and their complex and often painful father/son relationship in "My Father Sold Studebakers," the next entry in the "Matters of Life and Death" series in ETV.

"My Father Sold Studebakers" can be seen at 8 p.m., Friday, Aug. 5, on the ### Mississippi ETV Network.

Sweeney describes the program as a sort of video tapestry in which he combines footage from home movies, family album snapshots and present-day interviews with members of the family and some of his father's former business associates.

Early on in the work he observes that, ironically, ever since he was a child he has loved the classic old Studebaker automobiles but never was able to feel love for — or from — the father who sold them.

BellSouth divisions to sell household telephones

BellSouth Corporation reports Southern Bell and South Central Bell plan to re-enter the customer premises equipment market after the break-up of the Bell System next year.

BellSouth also announced it intends to establish a subsidiary to perform directory advertising operations for Southern Bell and South Central Bell and that it will assume ownership after divestiture of the Advanced Mobile Phone Service Corporation operating in the Southeast region and will begin provision of cellular radio telephone service in several major metropolitan areas in the near future.

The announcements were made by Wallace R. Bunn, the designated chief executive officer of BellSouth which will be divested from AT&T in 1984 as part of the Justice Department's antitrust settlement with AT&T.

The new corporation will be the parent company of Southern Bell, South Central Bell and other subsidiaries.

"As a practical matter, our ability to successfully market customer premises equipment is dependent on identification with the reputations of our two operating companies," Bunn explained.

"That was made possible when Judge Harold Greene of the Federal District Court in Washington ruled on the plan of reorganization and included a provision that allows us to use the Bell name and logo to sell equipment as well as in the provision of local telecommunications services," he added.

Bunn explained that specific plans for the equipment business could be influenced by a pending Federal Communications Commission action which is considering whether a fully separate subsidiary would be required for equipment sales.

The Bell operating companies are currently restricted to selling telephone equipment from inventory as a result of the FCC's Computer Inquiry II decisions; however, the court's ruling permits the companies to re-enter the equipment market on a retail basis.

The formation of the directory subsidiary will offer operational economies by combining staffs and eliminating duplication of functions," Bunn said. "It also recognized the competitive nature of the advertising sales and publishing business."

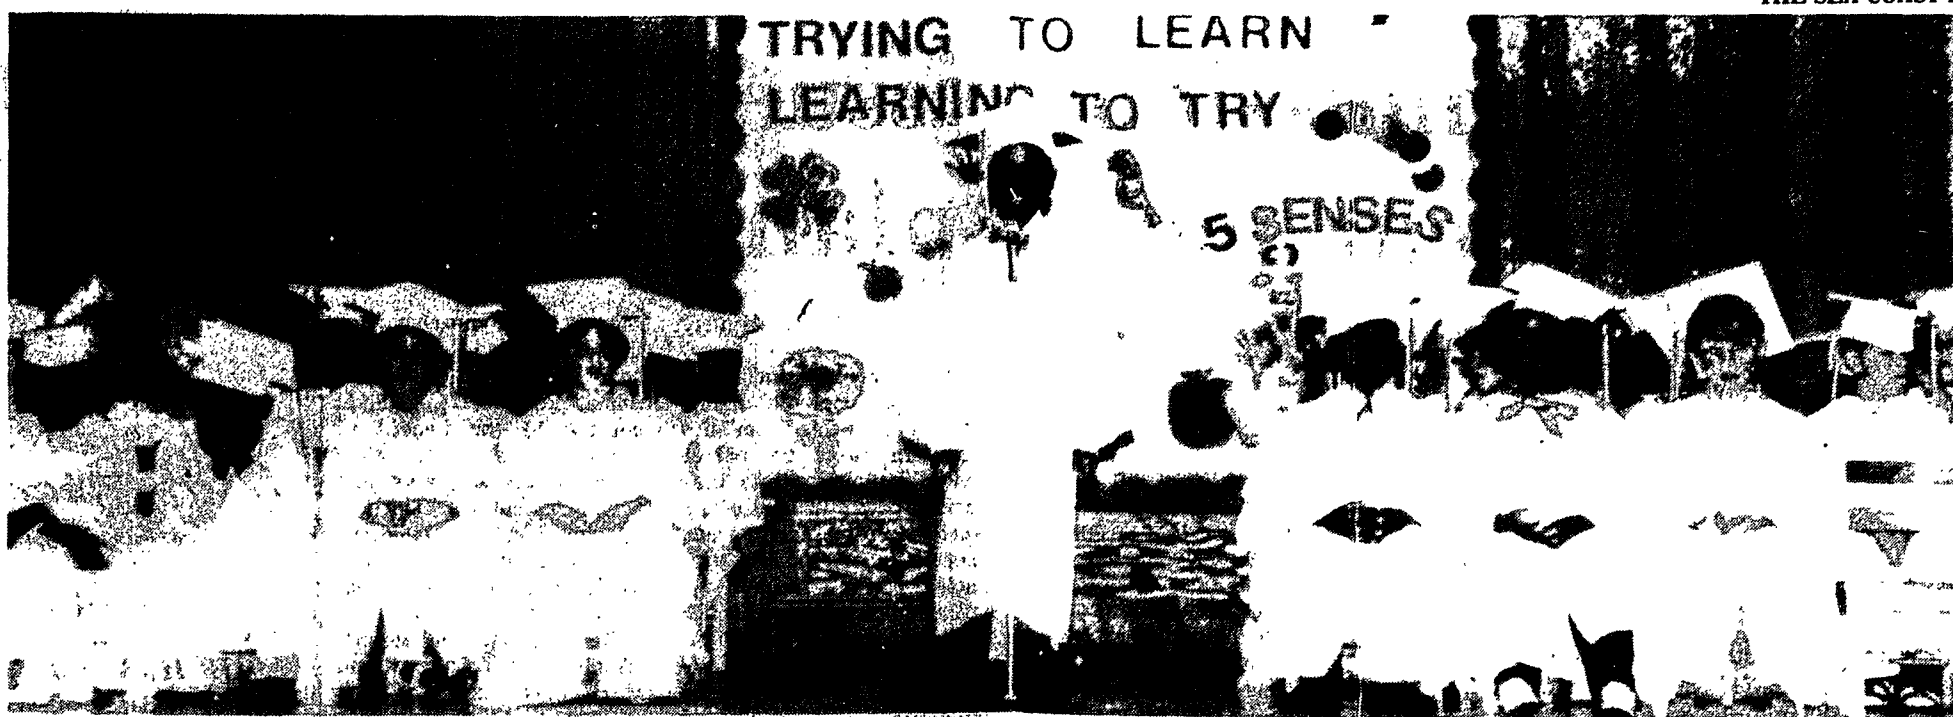

The announcements were made in a press conference called to announce the name of the new corporation.

Public service commissioner issues statement on nuclear power plants

Lynn Havens, chairman of the Mississippi Public Service Commission-South District, issued the following statement:

"In light of the testimony provided by Mississippi Power and Light Company witnesses during the course of the show-cause proceedings being conducted by the Mississippi Public Service Commission regarding the allocation of Grand Gulf Power to Mississippi Power and Light, I find it has become necessary for me to recommend to the other commissioners to call for formal certification hearings to be conducted regarding the financial feasibility of Unit 2 and its intended impact on the ratepayers of the State of Mississippi.

"Mississippi Power and Light Company has provided witnesses in the show cause proceedings who have indicated that Grand Gulf Unit 2, which is currently scheduled for completion in 1988 or 1989 time frame, will be very economically beneficial to the ratepayers of the State of Mississippi.

"Unfortunately, it is my belief that Unit 2 will not prove to be an economic windfall to the State of Mississippi, which the company currently projects.

"MP&L has a long history of being unable to accurately forecast the completion dates and the ultimate completion cost of Grand Gulf Nuclear facility.

"When initially planned, the Grand Gulf facility was anticipated to cost approximately $1.2 billion to complete both Unit 1 and Unit 2 with the units entering commercial operation in 1982.

"Unit 1 is currently slated to enter commercial operation at the end of this year at a cost of approximately $2.5 billion.

"Unit 2, on which construction was halted in 1978, is slated for completion in 1988 at an estimated cost of approximately $2.5 billion.

"The history of nuclear construction in this country suggests that the ultimate cost of completion for Unit 2 is, in all probability, in excess of company's anticipated $2.5 billion projection.

"If, in fact, that proves to be true, it would raise serious doubts to the financial feasibility of Unit 2 over its life-time and also the projected benefits to be derived from Unit 2 by the Mississippi ratepayers.

"I feel it is appropriate at this time that the Mississippi Public Service Commission take steps to ascertain the potential financial feasibility of Unit 2 and if warranted, pursue alternative generating capacity options such as utilization of native Mississippi lignite reserves in a lignite fired facility.

"This commission has long considered the utilization of lignite reserves as a method to insure the energy needs of the people of Mississippi into the future and to provide a boost to the industry of this state which would attend the development of lignite resources.

"Many recent studies indicate that coal and lignite fired generating facilities may, in fact, be better generating alternatives than nuclear power in light of the potential cost escalation and uncertainties associated with nuclear power.

An additional factor which played on my decision on recent nuclear regulatory commission actions which seeks to temporarily close down and require testing of various nuclear facilities around the country which contained nuclear steam supply systems provided by General Electric, the same company which is providing the power plant at Grand Gulf facility.

"The potential for Nuclear Regulatory Commission ratcheting of its safety guidelines makes it apparent that there is a potential for additional cost escalations due to regulatory changes as well as general inflation.

"The certification hearings which I am advocating for Grand Gulf Unit 2 are needed at this time to insure the Mississippi ratepayers will not have to bear unnecessary costs associated with the construction of a facility which is not in the best interest of the ratepayers of the State of Mississippi.

"A further consideration in my calling for these certification hearings is the fact that Grand Gulf Unit 2 has not been in a construction phase since 1978. As I mentioned earlier, which will allow us and the company an opportunity to explore the issues of financial feasibility without causing any additional delay in the potential construction schedule of Unit 2.

"One final thought on the issue of certification hearings regarding Unit 2 is that I am deeply concerned with the testimony provided by MP&L in the show cause proceedings (Docket U-4265) before the Mississippi Public Service Commission.

"The show cause hearings to determine why MP&L should not adhere to its original representation to this Commission in 1974 that the allocation of Grand Gulf power be a variable allocation based on the need of MP&L to meet its capability, responsibility position within the Middle South System.

"To date I am absolutely unsatisfied with that proposed change in the allocation of Grand Gulf and definitely am convinced it is not in the best interest of the ratepayers of Mississippi.

"If at the conclusion of the show cause proceedings I still have the same reservations I now hold, I feel it will be in all probability necessary to call certification hearings absolutely on Unit 1 as well as Unit 2.

"MP&L and Middle South Energy know fully well what they represented to this commission in 1974 and I am absolutely firm on my conviction that no company is going to come into this state and say to this commission it is going to operate to the benefit of Mississippi ratepayers while changing that allocation and action without one ounce of consideration for the hundreds of millions of dollars that it would impact upon Mississippi ratepayers.

"In fact, plain and simple, Middle South Energy and MP&L must shape this thing up or ship out."

Free Program On Drugs And Driving Available
From Car & Tire Dealers

A new audio-visual presentation on the dangers of drug use and driving is available for free loan from over 8,000 new car, light truck, and tire dealers around the country who are members of the Dealers Safety & Mobility Council, an affiliate of the Highway Users Federation.

Entitled "Double Trouble: Drugs and Driving," the program is a 13-minute narrated filmstrip with a leader's discussion guide and special handout brochures describing the actions citizens can take to discourage druged and drunken driving.

The filmstrip illustrates the influence of drugs, including alcohol, on a driver's ability to stay alert and recognize dangerous traffic situations. It explains how legal and illegal drugs affect the brain and central nervous system, and how mixing drugs with alcohol can multiply the impact of both.

The program can be borrowed by schools, church groups, civic and service clubs, and other interested organizations from any new car, light truck, or tire dealer who is a member of the Dealers Safety & Mobility Council.

Groups or individuals who have difficulty locating a participating dealer should contact John McCawley, Dealer Activities, Highway Users Federation, 1776 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 (tel. 202/857-1253).

County Agent's Notes

By John Smith

Timber Industry

Timber growers are welcoming the long-awaited recovery in homebuilding. Housing starts for the first three months of this year were at an average annual rate of 1.69 million units.

That represents a 37 percent increase above the last quarter in 1982 and 87 percent above the rate for the first quarter in 1982. Housing starts in May were 19 percent above April to their highest level since September of 1979.

The renewed home-building is good news for timber growers. Timber prices have followed the rise in homebuilding and prices have increased consistently in 1983.

Average prices for pine and hardwood sawtimber, pulpwood, poles, peeler logs and other wood products are available in a monthly report at the County Extension office.

Due to several factors, local prices vary within a given area and thus the average prices may not represent our local conditions. But the average prices are useful in helping to determine market trends.

Don't Play Superman

In farming, it's not unusual to see people minus a finger, or maybe even a hand, arm or leg lost in a machinery entanglement. Death is no stranger in some cases, either.

Please—stop machines dead before you unclog, adjust or service them. For added safety, be sure all guards are in place, and stay away from unguarded moving parts.

Going beyond one's human limitations is a factor in many accidents. Farmers often are under pressure to finish the job because of lack of help or weather problems. That pressure can lead to haste, chance-taking, unsafe shortcuts and fatigue. None of these are in the best interests of safety or even to productivity.

Never be so rushed that you throw caution in the wind. Don't try to play Superman. A lot of accidents happen when very tired farmers try to make "one more round."

Higher Yields

Making a profit in growing soybeans depends on both how much you spend and how much you sell. The lower your production costs, the better your chance of making a profit. Lowering the cost per bushel is what really matters.

Making higher yields is usually the best way to lower per-bushel costs and increase profits. But better yields don't just happen. You will generally find that yields gradually increase as you improve your planning and carry out those plans.

Many of the things necessary to getting higher yields, like planting on time with approved varieties, maintaining fertility and other factors, would hopefully have been done. But there is still plenty to do to improve chances of higher yields.

One is managing pests. Controlling pests such as insects and diseases and nematodes is always important, but is even more so this year with low crop prices and the potential for rapidly building populations which can seriously reduce yields.

Scouting for insects and diseases during the season is the best way to detect these problems before they do damage. It also allows you to apply control materials on a timely basis for more effective control.

The need to control crop pests is nothing new. But it is one important way to increase yields. And at today's prices, only the top yields will have a chance of turning a profit.

Late Gardens

You still have time for a late summer and fall garden to make up for shortcomings in earlier plantings. Rain and early cool weather really hurt many of our early gardens.

In July, there is still time to plant winter squash such as acorn, butternut and buttercup. If you want pumpkin, you'll also want to plant a few of those.

August is the time to plant seeds for cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and rutabagas. Consider growing transplants if the garden can't be carefully watched and watered.

Plant the seeds in late July or early August in north Mississippi and in mid-August in central and south Mississippi. Move the plants to the garden in September.

Check the Garden Tabloid for recommended varieties. We have copies at the County Extension office. You may have to order seed if local sources don't carry recommended varieties.

Science fiction convention registration discount offered

Reduced memberships for CoastCon '84 are being offered this summer for the annual three-day science fiction, fantasy and gaming event.

The convention will be held March 9-11 at the Royal d'Iberville Hotel on the beach in Biloxi.

Anyone who registers for the event now will save $5 over the price of admission at the door. The weekend will include films, games, panel discussions and social activities.

This year's convention will also attract some of the best known authors in science fiction and fantasy, according to CoastCon Committee President Jerry Patton of Biloxi.

"We will also be welcoming Randall Spangler, noted for his whimsical drawings of dragons, and several top names in the field of game design to the 1984 convention," Patton said.

Four video rooms, 24 hours a day movies, expanded areas for gaming, panel discussions by guests and participation by NASA are all on tap for the convention. Social activities will include a banquet, costume contest, meet the authors party and a Star Party, organized by the Jackson County Astronomical Society. For more information, or to register, write CoastCon '84, P.O. Box 1423, Biloxi MS 39533.

NSTL agency awards contract

A Pascagoula company has received a $27,386 contract to build hulls for data-gathering buoys used by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). Congressman Trent Lott announced.

Lott said Precision Engineering and Manufacturing Co. Inc. was awarded the contract by the NOAA Data Buoy Center, an agency of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The company submitted the lowest of 12 bids received from firms in seven states to fabricate three 10-foot diameter, aluminum, disc-shaped buoy hulls.

The NOAA Data Buoy Center, located at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County, has funded over the past few years the development of a variety of buoy hulls, up to 40 feet in diameter, covering a broad spectrum of technical capability.

Included in this program was the development of a minimum-cost coastal buoy to measure and report wind, waves, barometric pressure, and air and water temperature, from remote marine areas.

Reports are transmitted to shore via satellite every hour. The end result of this program is the "E-Buoy," a 10-foot diameter disc buoy, constructed from aluminum. The buoy assembly includes the hull, a tripod-shaped mast for mounting the sensors, and a rigid mooring bridle.

"This is another important step in applying new development to ocean measurements on all coasts of the United States. We are very pleased that this work is being done in Mississippi," Lott said.

TIMBERLINE

By David Watts
Hancock County Forester

Have you noticed a loss in luster on your favorite shade tree? Are the leaves starting to wilt, droop, or burn around the edges? It could be only that they are suffering from the hot weather.

Now that the days are getting longer, the temperature higher, and we're having less and less rainfall, we need to consider watering our yard trees.

Trees, like people, need moisture to survive. Water keeps the tree green and cool, and dissolves the soil minerals so that they can be taken up by the roots.

Young trees particularly need to be watered because their root systems have not developed sufficiently to reach deep down into the soil where they can get to the moisture they need. But during extensive dry periods even the largest trees need to be watered.

There are right and wrong ways to water a tree. Using a lawn sprinkler or just spraying the soil around the tree only gets the top layer of soil wet and encourages the roots to grow up near the surface resulting in lawn mower obstruction, cracked sidewalks and driveways and damage to the emerging roots. This root distress in turn can lead to insect and disease problems for your tree.

On the other hand, if you water deeply with plenty of water, it will soak downward and the roots will grow down for it.

Watering should be done slowly and gently. When using a hose, turn the water on to a slow stream, just enough to be absorbed by the soil under the tree. Lay the hose down and leave it there for 20 or 30 minutes—or even longer for larger trees. Don't use a nozzle because the strong blast will gouge holes that will later dry the roots out.

There are things that can be done to aid the moisture holding ability of the soil around the tree. For one thing, you can mulch around the base of the tree with decaying leaves, twigs, pine bark, or needles.

This will help the soil hold moisture in and at the same time reduce the need to mow close to the tree.

Too, a more fertile soil holds moisture better than a sandy soil, so increasing the richness of your soil during planting can help.

When planting your tree or shrubs you can help by constructing a wall of dirt around the base of the tree to prevent runoff when watering and to capture more of the rainfall for use by the plant.

So, next time you're out on a hot summer day and begin to feel thirsty, think about your shade trees and given them a drink too. Then mark that day on your calendar, and do it again next week and every week following until the rainy season sets in again.

WHEN THE MAIN THING TO WATCH WAS THE RADIO AND THE LIGHT BILL WAS MAINLY FOR THE LIGHT.

Jack Benny. The Shadow. Edward R. Murrow broadcasting from war-torn London. Mississippi Power families gathered around those bulky, boxy radios for news and entertainment. Besides that, their electricity needs were few: a refrigerator, a couple of fans. And electric lights. No wonder electricity bills were smaller then.

Over the past forty years, electricity and technology have substantially improved the quality of our lives. Conveniences you hardly even think about: home air conditioning, frost-free refrigerators, electric clothes dryers, microwave ovens, color televisions, home computers, dozens of others. Maybe your one reminder of this expanded service is the bill you receive each month from Mississippi Power.

Electricity Usage and Price 1913 vs. 1982
Average Annual Kilowatt-hour Usage/Customer	Average Annual Kilowatt-hour/Kilowatt-hour*	Average Annual Residential Bill
1913 1,057	3.7%	$ 39.84
1982 10,915	6.0%	$661.52

*A kilowatt-hour is the electricity necessary to light ten 100-watt light bulbs for one hour.

Look at the comparative chart. Residential customers on the average are using more than ten times as much electricity today. And bills are higher, not only because of increased usage, but also because it now costs more to produce electricity.

For example, just as your gasoline costs have skyrocketed, so has the cost of the fuel we burn to generate power. As a matter of fact, since the Arab Oil Embargo of 1973, our average cost of fuel per kilowatt-hour generated has more than quadrupled.

But in forty years, our price per kilowatt-hour has not even doubled. We know that's a claim most other goods and services couldn't make.

Our point is simple. When you stop to think of it, you'll realize what good value you're getting for the money you spend on electricity.

But maybe you're skeptical. Why not get out your last bill from Mississippi Power and break it down for yourself? Divide by the number of days each month and the number of people in your household. The result is your average electricity cost per person, per day, and might look something like this:

EXAMPLE
Mississippi Power Bill	Number of Days per Month	Number in Household	A Day per Person for Electricity
$140.00	30	4	$1.17

Electricity from Mississippi Power. A good value in '43. A better value in '83. Even when the light bill is for more than just the lights.

One of a series. If you have a question about your electric service or Mississippi Power, call or write. The address is on your bill stub.

ALUMNI OFFICERS—Local alumni chapter officers from a six-state area met on the campus of Southern Mississippi this summer for the annual Officer's Conference. Representatives of some 30 local chapters were brought up to date by university and alumni officials. They discussed local campus events for the year and exchanged ideas on how to get things done. Attending from South Mississippi were Frank Lott, president, and Mike Purvis, vice president, both of Harrison County; Buddy Klein, president, Hancock County; Toni McComber, vice president, and Mark Drummond, treasurer, both of Picayune Chapter.

COWBOY PAINTS FLOWERS—Artist Gary Jenkins brings his rustic humor with raw talent in his new how-to book, "Magic of Floral Painting," at 5:30 p.m., Sundays, beginning Aug. 7, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

ETV Brief

CONCERTO NO. 5

Concert pianist Andre Watts performs with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra in a special program on public television to be broadcast at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 30, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Andre Watts in Concert with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra features a performance of Beethoven's "Concerto No. 5 in E Major" ("Emperor") by Franz Liszt. Zoltan Kodaly's "Hosszú Dalnok" ("Long Dance of Galanta")

At the age of four, child prodigy Andre Watts chose a violin to play but later switched to piano after a span of two years.

His dedication and commitment to the piano were shared with the world ten years later when Leonard Bernstein introduced him as the soloist for a New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert and, three weeks later, presented him to regular subscribers as a last-minute substitute for the ailing Glenn Gould.

The enthusiastic ovation at both appearances resounded over wire services around the world, and the then-16-year-old Andre Watts burst into international fame. Today his concert schedule of 150 performances a year is booked three years in advance.

Weekend workshops to eye social justice, liturgy

St. Augustine's Retreat Center in Bay St. Louis will offer weekend workshops in September on liturgy and social justice.

"Roots of Worship" is title of the first program slated for Sept. 2-4.

"We will explore the origin of Black Catholic tradition and how this tradition is incorporated into the Sunday Liturgy," said Brother David Noonan, SVD, coordinator of the programs.

"This workshop should prove of special interest to liturgy committee members, commentators, choir members, ushers, Confraternity of Christian Doctrine teachers, deacons, religious, and priests," Noonan said.

The workshop will be conducted by Rev. Clifton Labbe, SVD, and Ms. Vinetta Boyd.

Participants are expected to arrive after supper on Friday, Sept. 2 by 7:30 p.m. The program will conclude after lunch Sunday, Sept. 4.

"Issues of Social Justice for Religious" is a series of conferences and activities scheduled for Sept. 23-25 and designed to make participants increasingly aware of the "justice-peace dimensions of Christian commitment."

"The consequences of armaments build up, economic interdependence and world poverty will be considered," Noonan explained.

"This workshop is directed to first world Christians, especially religious," he added.

The late September event will be conducted by Rev. Bede Smith, SVD, and Sister Doreen Tobin, CSJP.

Arrival and departure times for participants will be by 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 23 and after lunch Sunday, Sept. 25, respectively.

Fees for either event are $40 for overnight guests and $15 for commuters.

For reservations or information, call Noonan at 467-6414.

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.

QUESTION—Although some 2,500 federal drug agents have mobilized to cut into the booming trade, the spread of cocaine has continued. For every pound authorities grab, another six slip out into the market place, an estimated 45 tons a year. How big is the annual cocaine business?

- a) $25 billion
- b) $20 billion
- c) $15 billion
- d) $10 billion

ANSWER—Selling coke is, in the words of one U.S. drug official, "the most lucrative of all underworld ventures." Cocaine has become a $25 billion business, about three times as big as the recording and movie industries put together. On the street a gram of cocaine (about a teaspoonful) costs $100 to $150, and is only 15% pure.

Tips offered on cutting costs without sacrificing quality

By ANN O. ROSSING

Extension Specialist

Now you go about spending your food budget is up to you. But saving as much as possible is well worthwhile. USDA has estimated that an average family will likely spend some $61,000 for food in a lifetime. If prices continue rising that amount will increase.

There are many ways to cut grocery costs without sacrificing quality or quantity. Here are some suggestions that make sense.

Save food and household aid coupons from magazines, newspapers, grocery store circulars and package tags.

Take note of their expiration dates. These can be applied to sales items to increase savings. A 25-cent sale off might not sound like much, but ten times a year is $2.50 enough to buy a new pair of shoes.

Read up when you go. Newspapers carry the bulk of their food advertising. Many have a special day during the week when most sales ads and coupons appear. Start a coupon swap in your office or neighborhood. By asking friends and associates to bring in coupons they don't want that someone else might use. Keep them in a special drawer for personal purposes.

Pay attention to specials advertised in supermarket and discount store circulars and make it a habit to glance at store ads as you walk by, because you might notice a particularly good buy.

Compare regular prices at various local supermarkets to find which one consistently carries the best quality and selection for the least amount of money. Some stores have their own plans to help shoppers save so make a note of these and compare them to various deals and special sales campaigns.

If time permits take full advantage of low prices by shopping at two or more neighboring stores. This requires a little more time (but not gasoline), and the money you save can make it worthwhile.

Print out if there is a warehouse food store in your neighborhood. Many of these no-frills places offer the same products that the average supermarket carries, but at substantially lower prices.

Look into neighborhood food cooperatives which entitle members to lower prices while they play an active role in the coop's operation.

Check out thriftshop bakeries and day-old bakery sections in grocery stores. The food should still be very fresh, just a day or so older—as it would be if you had purchased it the night before for full price and left it in your kitchen overnight. It can be a lot less expensive.

Shop early in the week when produce and meat are freshest and sale items are well stocked. Many stores, however, do allow substitution of a product of equal value if a sale coupon item is sold out, or let you use the coupon the following week when the supply has been replenished.

Experiment with unbranded items by comparing them with your favorite name brands and decide for yourself which are best for you.

Most supermarket list unit prices per pound, etc., underneath each product alongside the actual retail price for the weight at which the particular product is being sold.

Use unit pricing to make cost comparisons between different brands of the same type of product and to figure how much you save by buying a larger amount of any given brand.

The largest size is usually the most economical buy, but you will want to purchase the least expensive size that you can comfortably store and use.

Buy meat wholesale if you have extra freezer storage space. Shop around and compare prices to be sure you get the best deal, and figure out the price per pound to insure that you actually are saving money.

Remember that fresh vegetables often are less expensive, and more tasty, than their frozen versions.

Mississippi Power reports summer demand capability

High temperatures across southeast Mississippi are pushing up summer demand for electricity, but Mississippi Power Company reports no problems in meeting the increased loads.

Harry Bell, the Gulfport-based utility's vice president of Bulk Power Resources, said all of the company's electric generating units are on line or available and that "our electric system's power supply will be sufficient to ensure a reliable supply of electricity in southeast Mississippi."

Bell said Mississippi Power Company's peak demand for electricity this year has already exceeded last summer's heaviest day. As of Wednesday, July 27, the utility's peak demand was 1,407 megawatts, or 50 megawatts above 1982's peak demand of 1,356 megawatts. The 1982 peak occurred on Monday, July 26, at 3 p.m. and is 55 megawatts below the company's all-time record peak of 1,462 megawatts which was set in 1980.

If temperatures continue to rise across southeast Mississippi and customers continue to purchase more power, we could meet or exceed the 1980 peak," Bell said. "Mississippi Power Company has a total generating capacity of 1,965 megawatts and we anticipate being able to meet southeast Mississippi's demand without any difficulty." Mississippi Power Company, which serves more than 182,000 customers, is a part of the Southern electric system and is interconnected with Alabama, Georgia and Gulf power companies.

4-H Convention slated Aug. 8&9

4-H Champions named in state 4-H educational programs during the past year will be honored at the annual State 4-H Convention at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Jackson Aug. 8-9.

The event has been designed to provide education, inspiration, and recognition for the more than 400 boys and girls, volunteer leaders, Extension workers and donors who will attend.

An educational highlight of Convention will be a mock State 4-H Legislature in the House and Senate chambers. County delegations have prefiled bills to be considered by House and Senate assemblies.

Dr. James R. Carpenter, director of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, will address the assembly and swear in State 4-H Council President, Johnny Dowdy, as 4-H Governor.

Youths will write, introduce, debate and pass or defeat bills which represent areas of concern in agriculture. These experiences will help the youths to learn the functions of government officials as well as their role in government. State 4-H Council officers and others who serve in the House and Senate will have the opportunity to develop leadership skills.

Convention will not be all work and no fun. The delegates will be entertained by Dianne Evans, 1982 Miss Mississippi and the second runner-up to Miss America.

4-Hers will have a special opportunity to say "thank you" to donors, State 4-H Advisory Council and 4-H Foundation members and other friends who contribute so much to help make 4-H successful.

Family bankruptcy sometimes expedient

By BEVERLY RICHES
Family specialist
Extension Service

It is a difficult matter to decide when to file for bankruptcy. The decision is often made after a family has been through a disaster, such as a fire, flood, or other catastrophe. The decision is often made after a family has been through a disaster, such as a fire, flood, or other catastrophe. The decision is often made after a family has been through a disaster, such as a fire, flood, or other catastrophe.

attorney to help them fill out the petition and file it with the clerk of the U.S. District Court. The petition declares that a family can no longer pay the bills they owe. The petition includes a list of the people to whom the family owes money, a list of the property owned by the family, and a list of the debts owed by the family.

The petition is given to a bankruptcy judge who notifies the people to whom money is owed of their right to file a claim against the person or family that filed and question them on the witness stand. Creditors then have 30 days to object to a person's not having to pay what they owe.

If there are no objections, the bankruptcy judge will grant what is called a discharge. A discharge in bankruptcy releases a person from legal liability for the payment of all debts owed at the time of bankruptcy. A trustee is then either elected by the creditors or appointed by the judge. All possessions, with the exception of those exempt by law, are turned over to the trustee to be sold.

The proceeds from the sale of these possessions are distributed to creditors who have filed claims in proportion to the amount owed them. The remaining debt is then legally erased.

Along about this time of summer there comes a day of reckoning about the household menus... will the assorted kith and kin stand for another quick-quick or cold meal, or is it time to give them a real meal?

Well, we all know that even when it's too hot to cook, it's seldom too hot to eat, especially with ravenous teenagers or younger fry about the house. My solution is to cook up various dishes at odd times... in the relative cool of the late evening or the early morning, then refrigerate or freeze them for later use.

I also try to stick to dishes which need only reheating or warming, or at least a relatively short time in the oven... after all, when you cook, you do have to generate some heat, inside or outside the house, and there is a limit to how often you can barbecue or quick fry or broil (THAT can quickly exceed budget limits!)

A tried and true standby for me is a spaghetti, chicken and spinach dish... though you may easily substitute ham or ground meat or pork bits or even that old standby, tuna, for the chicken. It also freezes well, and is an excellent dish for a special buffet party; and if you're a live-aloner or twosome, it's easily frozen in smaller portions. Here's

SPINACH-CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

2 broiler-fryer chickens, or 2 cups or more cooked chicken, in chunks
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and well drained
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cups chicken broth or stock
1/3 cup flour
1 cup milk
2 cups sharp Cheddar cheese, grated
1/4 cup dry sherry
8 ounces thin spaghetti, cooked and drained
If you're starting from scratch, simmer the chicken for an hour or so, until tender, cool, strip from bones, and cut into chunks... but if you're a "think-ahead," just use the chicken you've already cooked.

Melt about three tablespoons of the butter in a rather large saucepan, add the chopped onion, and saute until soft. (At this point, if you've decided to use fresh spinach, rinsed, drained and chopped, add it and saute till it wilts, stirring from time to time. Otherwise, just add the thawed drained spinach to the sauteed onions and cook about one slow minute. Remove the vegetables and set aside.)

Add the remainder of the butter to the skillet and melt slowly over low heat. Add the flour and a dash of pepper and salt to your taste, stirring till smooth. Gradually stir in the reserved broth and milk (if you haven't any broth on hand, use canned broth or even bouillon cubes, if you must... but chicken broth is so handy to keep around, and what else do you do with the chicken bones, anyway?)

Well, add the cheese, vegetables and chicken chunks, and let's not forget the sherry, and stir over low heat until the cheese melts. Add the spaghetti to the sauce, and spoon the whole business into a 2-quart baking dish. Top with foil and bake for a half hour in a 350° oven. Take the foil off and bake another five minutes or so. (Six to 8 servings.)

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

USING A LEASE/PURCHASE QUESTION:

We are having a difficult time selling our home. The only offer we have is for a lease with an option to buy after one year. We are somewhat at a loss as to what to do and need some advice on selling our house by this means. W.W., Carthage.

ANSWER: Dear W.W.: During the past few years homeowners have come to realize that there are numerous ways to finalize the sale of their home other than the traditional one of receiving cash in exchange for transferring title by a deed. Certainly the high interest rates we have witnessed as well as less building activity have added to the "innovative" techniques currently being used in the marketplace.

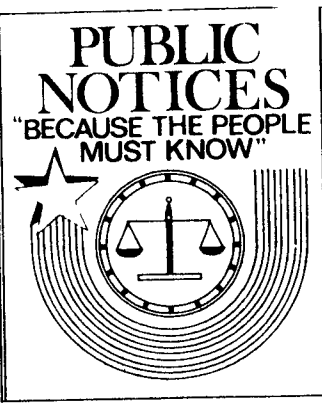

When a lease/purchase contract is used to sell a house, the seller actually leases it with an agreement that the house may be purchased by the person renting at some future date, and normally for a specified price. If you are seriously considering this means of selling, several factors should be considered before you agree to such an arrangement.

Because there may not be a substantial down payment, you as the seller may not receive enough cash to purchase another home. While you did not state the reason for selling, most sellers purchase another home within a reasonably short period of time and thus need the cash. On the other hand, if you are willing to collect monthly payments, taxes and insurance, you may receive certain income tax benefits. Your accountant should be able to explain this to you.

From the purchaser's point of view, the monthly lease payment is usually lower than the monthly principal and interest payments on a high-interest mortgage. Then, too, part of the monthly rental payment usually is applied to the purchase price, but the prospective buyer does not receive any of the tax benefits associated with homeownership.

If you want to know more about lease/purchase agreements, contact a knowledgeable real estate broker.

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tush, P.O. Box 295, University, MS-38677.
